Korean Armistice Gains Sour Notes

Dulles Charges Truce Terms Violated Red Inspectors Draw ROKs' Wrath

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles charged Tuesday the Communists have clearly violated some terms of the Korean armistice, but he held that the violations do not justify resuming the war.

Dulles said the Reds have deliberately obstructed the work of the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission and probably have built up their airpower beyond the limits allowed under the 1953 cease fire.

In view of the Communist attitude, Dulles told a news conference, he favors Sweden and Switzerland's request that they be permitted to quit the Supervisory Commission which is assigned to check conditions on both sides of the armistice line.

No Inspection

He said Red restrictions on the commission, which also included representatives of Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia, have made it impossible to inspect Northern Korea, particularly since they have built up new supply routes which they do not permit the Swiss and Swedes to inspect.

In answering questions he also:

1. Chided against any Communist attempt to "fear and vacillation" were evident in U.S. policy toward Asia. Dulles said such comments showed a petulance which might be attributed to Washington's heat wave. He added, however, that the United States is big enough to be tolerant of Red's remarks since he is a very fine patriot.
2. Reported that the United States has sent a second sharp note to Communist China, demanding compensation for six Americans killed or wounded by Red fighter planes.
3. Said the American Air Force and Navy would help protect Formosa against any Communist attack even though no formal defense treaty now exists with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government.
4. Hailed the settlement of the Suez dispute between Britain and Egypt. This shifts 80,000 of Britain's best troops from an area where they were exposed to possible atomic attack in the event of war, he said, and allows Egypt to concentrate on its economic and social development.
5. Said he has reason to believe an agreement can be expected Wednesday, solving the long-standing British-Iranian dispute over oil facilities along the Persian Gulf.

Mrs. H. D. Dunn, 6745 Aylesworth, suffered a fractured right hip Tuesday night in a two-car accident at 63rd and Aylesworth.

Driver of the other vehicle was Lyle V. Exverso, 22, of 1814 No. 68th, who was driving north on 68th.

'Allied Agents Nabbed'

East Germans Report Roundup Of Many 'Spies'

BERLIN (AP)—The East German Communist regime announced Tuesday night widespread arrests of alleged American and West German agents operating in the Soviet zone.

The arrests were announced just two weeks after the former chief of West Germany's intelligence security service, Dr. Otto John, crossed to Communist East Berlin.

Since John's defection, Allied and West German officials have feared such wholesale arrests of East Germans who regularly send out vital information from the Russian zone.

Inside Track
John, 44, who was for almost four years head of West Germany's security office, knew the identities of hundreds of such persons.

East German Interior Minister Willi Stoph announced over the government radio that state security police in the Soviet zone arrested a "large number" of agents of the Behlen organization and of the "American Secret Service"—the usual Communist name for U. S. counter-intelligence.

Stoph did not give the total but said many of those swept up in the arrests Monday and Tuesday "confessed immediately."

'Volunteers' Too
Among those who turned themselves in voluntarily, the Stoph announcement said, were agents for several branches of the West German Office for Protection of the Constitution. This is the office headed by John until he went behind the Iron Curtain July 20.

Also among those seized were purported agents for the Gehlen organization, the military intelligence counterpart of John's security organization in West Germany. It is a highly secret, undercover agency headed by former Lt. Gen. Reinhold Gelin, one-time general in Hitler's Wehrmacht and from 1942 to 1945 chief of Nazi military intelligence on the Russian front.

Kim's statement was an echo of Won Yong Duk, South Korea army provost marshal. He accused the Red inspectors of spying and threatened action if they did not quit South Korea.

The three demonstrations were orderly. There were no new reports of violence, such as Saturday and Sunday, when homemade bombs were tossed into one inspection team compound and bullets were fired into another.

U.S. Embassy
Some 200 leaflet-throwing South Korean youths milled outside the U.S. Embassy in Seoul demanding that "Communists and spies" leave the country.

At Panmunjom, the Communists accused the U.N. Command of violating the armistice by permitting the demonstrations.

"We told them," said near Adm. T. B. Brittain, senior U.N. member of the commission, "that all steps have been taken to protect the neutral nations inspection teams and that they are continuing their functions and inspections."

Worker Injured By Falling Porch

A porch dropped off a house, Jack Berlowitz, 29, of 2903 No. 44 was helping to move and crushed the worker's leg, fracturing it Tuesday afternoon.

He was rushed from 2000, No. 31st where he was working, to St. Elizabeth's Hospital. Berlowitz was reported in "fair condition" there, possibly suffering from internal injuries.

Police Seek Boy Who Was Bitten By Polio Victim

DENVER (INS)—Denver police hunted Tuesday for a Lubbock, Tex., "boy-bite victim" who may have polio.

E. Y. Lee of Lubbock phoned Denver police to tell them his son bit the son of Clyde Thomas while wrestling last week.

Lee explained his son is now in the hospital with polio and may have transmitted it to the Thomas boy via the bite.

Lee said Thomas and his son left Lubbock Sunday morning by car for a vacation in the Denver-Colorado Springs area.

Engineering Dept. Delays On Right-of-Way Cited: Contractor Seeking Extension Of Time On Water Pipeline

City officials have counted on completion of the main on April 15 at the latest to avoid any water use restrictions in the summer of 1955. Carrying construction of the main into June could bring on restriction difficulties.

The city's first knowledge of a water shortage came early in June of 1952. On June 12, 1952, consumption hit a peak of 84.1 million gallons per day and restrictions on the use of water were imposed on June 13.

The requested extension of time by the pipe line contractor, Charles F. Smith & Sons of Dayton, O., is based, according to City Engineer D. L. Erickson, on delays caused by the city's failure to obtain certain sections of pipe line right-of-way.

This delay, however, according to Erickson, was for only five days which is all the contractor would be entitled to for an extension, at the most.

The delay in acquisition of the right-of-way, a section through Waverly, is reported to be the result of both a late determination by the engineering department of the pipe line route and reliance by the engineering department on verbal right-of-way promises rather than written contracts. The verbal promises were reported to have been later denied and not honored, thus necessitating further negotiation.

The contract with Smith for the nearly $3 million pipe line installation job leaves the extension of time for completion up to the discretion of the city engineering department. Extension without the city's approval would call for cost penalties against the contractor.

Mayor Clark Jarvis' only statement on the requested extension to Erickson, was for only five days which is all the contractor would be entitled to for an extension, at the most.

RENO (INS)—Barbara "Bobo" Rockefeller, appearing as her own star witness at a closed 20-minute court session, was granted a Reno divorce Tuesday dissolving her tempestuous Cinderella marriage to multimillionaire Standard Oil heir Winthrop Rockefeller.

Along with the divorce, the beautiful daughter of a humble Lithuanian miner won financial security to the tune of some $6,000,000—for herself and the couple's five-year-old son, Winthrop Jr., nicknamed Winnie.

The decree, ending nearly five years of stormy quarrels over money arrangements and little Winnie's future, was handed down by District Judge John Belford in Reno's celebrated Washoe County Court.

Jet Fighter Crashes In Home Area

... Only Pilot Dies

WANTAGH, N.Y. (AP)—A crippled Air Force jet fighter plowed out of a formation of four Tuesday, then crashed and exploded like a bomb in this Long Island town. An entire neighborhood was rocked and 37 homes damaged.

The pilot was killed. Six persons on the ground were injured, none gravely. Scores of others narrowly escaped as the doomed plane just missed their homes.

Vain Try
Eye witnesses said the pilot fought to the end to crash his plane into the street rather than into buildings. He previously had tried in vain to force it out to sea.

He was identified by the Air Force as Capt. William Weiland, 34, of Peru, Ill., who lived with his family at Millford, Del. The four-plane flight was on its way from Dover, Del., to Bangor, Me.

The jet plowed a hole 15 feet deep as it came down on Denver Road, a quiet residential street of small, neat bungalows. Its heavy engine was hurled two blocks.

Metal debris from the plane rocketed for a half mile in all directions, damaging many homes. Others were left charred and smoking from the searing explosion. Windows were smashed and doors blown in. A parked auto was destroyed. Children's bicycles lay twisted and smashed where their owners had abandoned them.

Wantagh is on the south shore of Long Island about 50 miles from Times Square in New York City.

Holes In Tent

Two large holes were poked into a revival meeting tent on the southwest corner of 33rd and Apple, police said, by vandals. The vandalism was performed using two long steel rods. Damage was estimated by police at $25.

Equalization Agreement 'Substantial'

Final Action Set For Wednesday

By ARCH DONOVAN
Star Staff Writer

The State Board of Equalization during a two hour session Tuesday reached "substantial" agreement on equalizing between counties members said after the executive session.

Final action is expected to be taken Wednesday morning after the return of Treasurer Frank Heintze, who had political commitments in Omaha Tuesday. All other members of the board were in attendance.

It was explained that any changes made will be percentage increases or decreases to bring the counties into line with other counties and that final computation of valuations for the counties will not be completed for a couple of days after which the state levy can be fixed.

In addition to evidence obtained at hearings with county officials last week and Monday of this week, the board discussed the valuations submitted by the counties with field men of the state tax commissioner.

All Called
The board originally accepted assessment abstracts of 51 of the state's 93 counties but subsequently decided to call in all counties for hearing. This was done after considerable evidence had accumulated that property values have declined in the past year.

It was first reported that the board might make a general cut in assessment valuations, but protests to this type of action came from a number of counties that opposed reductions and wanted other counties increased to their level.

They pointed out that it made no difference in tax dollars from the individual as higher assessments would mean lower levies would bring the amount of money necessary to meet budgets they have approved. Lower valuations would mean that higher levies would have to be set.

The board finally decided to adjust from county to county to bring about equalization between all counties. Various board members said they had figures on some counties they wanted to study further before the morning session Wednesday.

Cooler, Maybe Showers, Says Weather Man

By The Associated Press

Cooler temperatures and the possibility of scattered thunderstorms make up Nebraska's weather outlook for Wednesday.

The Weather Bureau said scattered thunderstorms would be likely in the west and north, and possibly in the southeastern sector Wednesday evening.

A sharp thunderstorm, apparently localized in the Wahoo area, brought 47 of an inch of rain there Tuesday night. Fremont received but .10 and Prague .25. Malm and Cedar Bluffs received a trace. Omaha reported a shower.

96 At 1 A.M.
The .97 of an inch shower only added humidity to those Omahans who were trying desperately to sleep in the heat that refused to leave—the temperature there at 1 a.m. was still a torrid 96 degrees.

The forecast was for temperatures taking a downward trend in the east during the day, spreading over the state Wednesday night. High readings should register near 85 in the northwest and in the upper 90s in the extreme southeast.

The long range forecast, for the next five days, indicated precipitation would be about normal—a fourth to a half inch in western Nebraska and up to three-quarters of an inch in the eastern part of the state.

Locally heavier showers, mainly expected in the east during the period.

Bess Streeter Aldrich Rites To Be Friday

Funeral services for Mrs. Bess Streeter Aldrich, world-famous author who died in Lincoln Tuesday noon, will be held at 10:30 a.m. Friday at the Elmwood Methodist Church.

Dr. Frank Court, pastor of St. Paul Methodist Church will officiate. Burial will be in the Elmwood Cemetery.

She Loved The Small Town: Humor And Sympathy Marked Mrs. Aldrich

By SALLY ADAMS
Star Staff Writer

Humor and sympathy were qualities of Bess Streeter Aldrich's life and of her work.

She did the bulk of her writing while living at Elmwood, population 425.

"The town is so small," she once wrote, "that you have to hear the hand practice every Monday night whether you want to or not, but I love it."

She listed the turning point of her career as 1911. She won a $175 short story contest conducted by the Ladies Home Journal with her story, "The Little House Next Door."

Used Pen Name
For the next seven years she wrote under the pen name, Margaret Dean Stevens. She sold "Mother's Day For Liberty," first of the Mason stories, to American Magazine near the end of World War I.

An Occupation Army soldier in Germany wrote the magazine's editor for more such stories, saying it reminded him and his buddies of home and family. Editor John Siddle agreed and she wrote more of the stories, which in collected form became her first book.

Her prize-winning story, "The Man Who Caught the Weather," was rejected by 28 magazines before Century Magazine accepted it.

If a story was rejected, Mrs. Aldrich kept working it over until it quit coming back.

"I didn't want all that long and tedious work to go for nothing if I could help it," she declared.

Didn't Read Others Work
She didn't read other people's fiction.

"If you manufactured candy, would you want to stand around and eat it all the time?" she'd ask.

She wrote in longhand and hired a girl to type her manuscripts. She kept a regular cleaning lady, but did all the family cooking.

She liked to boast, truthfully.

There was also a framed letter from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz in which he had written that in the darkest hours of the war in the Pacific, the officers on his flagship passed around a copy of "Lantern in Her Hand" and drew from it renewed faith in America and the spirit that made her strong.

Her three sons have also had successful careers. James is a commercial artist in New York City. Charles, a Long Island engineer, helped design Republic's P-47 fighter during World War II. Robert, formerly a reporter for an Omaha paper, has been a free lance writer in Lincoln since 1949.

Memento-Filled Study
Her study in Lincoln was filled with mementos of the pioneer days and hung with framed illustrations from her magazine stories.

Like's Request Shelved

2 Billion Measure OKd; President's Wish Unheard

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate took a sharp swing at the foreign aid bill Tuesday, cutting half a billion dollars from a measure that now stands 838 million below President Eisenhower's original request.

It passed by a 67-19 vote a $2,610,000,000 authorization, which compares with more than $3,448,000,000 asked by the President, and returned it to the House which had approved on June 30 more than $3,368,000,000. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee cut this to $3,110,000,000.

Nebraska's Republican senators split their votes as the Senate passed the $2,610,000,000 foreign aid authorization bill. Sen. Bowring voted for the bill. Sen. Reynolds against it. Shortly before passage, the Senate approved a 45-41 amendment by Sen. Long (D-La.) to slash the authorization by a half billion.

Sen. Bowring voted with the minority on this move. Sen. Reynolds was not recorded as voting.

An earlier amendment by Long providing for a billion dollar cut was defeated 48-38.

Still Unspent
Opponents of the measure cited large amounts of aid funds still unspent, disappointment at Communist inroads in Indochina and the possible loss of huge stockpiles of U.S. equipment to the Reds at Hanoi.

The cut came despite warnings from administration and veteran Democratic senators that it would be misunderstood by nations looking to this country for anti-Communist leadership.

On the 45-41 vote, 26 Democrats and 19 Republicans teamed for the slash. On the losing side were 25 Republicans, 15 Democrats and one Independent. Enough senators switched from the first vote to put the smaller cut across.

Actual appropriations must yet be made for foreign aid, and here again there may be differences between the two houses that will have to be compromised.

New Funds
The House has passed not only an authorization measure, but also a separate money bill providing for new aid funds. It calls for $2,895,944,000 of new funds, or some 285 millions more than the Senate authorization, plus $2,312,479,979 of old but unspent money.

The Senate Appropriations Committee is expected to approve a money bill Wednesday.

Sen. Long, battling for reduced funds, said Indochina Communists stood to get a windfall of more than 400 million dollars worth of new American military equipment now piled on the docks at Hanoi, still uncrated.

He said salvaging another 700 million dollars worth already crated and "in the pipeline headed for Indochina" would more than offset the cut he proposed.

Gold, Long and Sen. Far (D-Idaho) strongly urged that this country try to salvage the equipment at Hanoi.

Today's Chuckle
Everybody is of some use in the world, even if only to serve as a horrible example.

Equalization Agreement 'Substantial'

Final Action Set For Wednesday

Cooler, Maybe Showers, Says Weather Man

By The Associated Press

Cooler temperatures and the possibility of scattered thunderstorms make up Nebraska's weather outlook for Wednesday.

The Weather Bureau said scattered thunderstorms would be likely in the west and north, and possibly in the southeastern sector Wednesday evening.

A sharp thunderstorm, apparently localized in the Wahoo area, brought 47 of an inch of rain there Tuesday night. Fremont received 10 and Prague 25. Malmo and Cedar Bluffs received a trace. Omaha reported a shower.

96 At 1 A.M.
The .07 of an inch shower only added humidity to those Omahas who were trying desperately to sleep in the heat that refused to leave—the temperature there at 1 a.m. was still a torrid 96 degrees.

The forecast was for temperatures taking a downward trend in the east during the day Wednesday night. High readings should register near 85 in the northwest and in the upper 90s in the extreme southeast.

The long range forecast, for the next five days, indicated precipitation would be about normal—a fourth to a half inch in western Nebraska and up to three-quarters of an inch in the eastern part of the state.

Locally heavier thunderstorms are expected in the east during the period.

Bess Streeter Aldrich Rites To Be Friday

Funeral services for Mrs. Bess Streeter Aldrich, world-famous author who died in Lincoln Tuesday noon, will be held at 10:30 a.m. Friday at the Elmwood Methodist Church.

Dr. Frank Court, pastor of St. Paul Methodist Church will officiate. Burial will be in the Elmwood Cemetery.

She Loved The Small Town: Humor And Sympathy Marked Mrs. Aldrich

By SALLY ADAMS
Star Staff Writer

Humor and sympathy were qualities of Bess Streeter Aldrich's life and of her work. She did the bulk of her writing while living at Elmwood, population 425.

"The town is so small," she once wrote, "that you have to hear the band practice every Monday night whether you want to or not, but I love it."

She listed the turning point of her career as 1911. She won a $175 short story contest conducted by the Ladies Home Journal with her story, "The Little House Next Door."

Used Pen Name
For the next seven years she wrote under the pen name, Margaret Dean Stevens. She sold "Mother's Dash For Liberty," first of the Mason stories, to American Magazine near the end of World War I.

An Occupation Army soldier in Germany wrote the magazine's editor for more such stories, saying it reminded him and his buddies of home and family. Editor John S. Sillars agreed and she wrote more of the stories, which in collected form became her first book.

Her prize-winning story, "The Man Who Caught the Weather," was rejected by 28 magazines before Century Magazine accepted it.

If a story was rejected, Mrs. Aldrich kept working it over until it quit coming back.

"I didn't want all that long and tedious work to go for nothing if I could help it," she declared.

Didn't Read Others Work
She didn't read other people's fiction.

"If you manufactured candy, would you want to stand around and eat it all the time?" she'd ask.

She wrote in longhand and hired a girl to type her manuscripts. She kept a regular cleaning lady, but did all the family cooking.

She liked to boast, truthfully.

Ike's Request Shelved

2 Billion Measure OK'd; President's Wish Unheard

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate took a sharp swing at the foreign aid bill Tuesday, cutting half a billion dollars from a measure that now stands 838 million below President Eisenhower's original request.

It passed by a 67-19 vote a $2,610,000,000 authorization, which compares with more than $3,448,000,000 asked by the President, and returned it to the House which had approved on June 30 more than $3,368,000,000. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee cut this to $3,110,000,000.

Nebraska's Republican senators split their votes as the Senate passed the $2,610,000,000 foreign aid authorization bill. Sen. Bowring voted for the bill, Sen. Reynolds against it.

Shortly before passage, the Senate approved 45-41 an amendment by Sen. Long (D-La) to slash the authorization by a half billion.

Sen. Bowring voted with the minority on this vote. Sen. Reynolds was not recorded as voting.

A earlier amendment by Long providing for a billion dollar cut was defeated 48-38.

Still Unspent

Opponents of the measure cited large amounts of aid funds still unspent, dissatisfaction at Communist inroads in Indochina and the possible loss of huge stockpiles of U.S. equipment to the Reds at Hanoi.

The cut came despite warnings from administration and veteran Democratic senators that it would be misunderstood by nations looking to this country for anti-Communist leadership.

On the 45-41 vote, 26 Democrats and 19 Republicans teamed for the slash. On the losing side were 25 Republicans, 15 Democrats and one Independent. Enough senators switched from the first vote to put the smaller cut across.

Actual appropriations must yet be made for foreign aid, and here again there may be differences between the two houses that will have to be compromised.

New Funds
The House has passed not only an authorization measure, but also a separate money bill providing both new and old funds. It calls for $2,895,944,000 of new funds, or some 285 millions more than the Senate authorization, plus $2,312,475,000 of old but unspent money.

The Senate Appropriations Committee is expected to approve a money bill Wednesday.

Sen. Long, battling for reduced funds, said Indochina Communists stood to get a windfall of more than 400 million dollars worth of new American military equipment under the terms of the docks at Hanoi, still uncrated.

He said salvaging another 700 million dollars worth already crated and "in the pipeline headed for Indochina" would more than offset the cut he proposed.

Both Long and Sen. Frear (D-Del) strongly urged that this country try to salvage the equipment at Hanoi.

Today's Chuckle

By The Associated Press

Rep. Dewey Short, chairman of the powerful Armed Services Committee, won renomination to his 12th term in Missouri's GOP primary Tuesday.

This apparently assured him of re-election since his district usually votes heavily Republican.

In Kansas, where Republican nomination usually means election, Lt. Gov. Fred Hall pulled ahead of George Temple in the GOP primary for governor.

And in Michigan, Donald S. Leonard jumped ahead of three opponents in the Republican primary for governor, with the winner to face Gov. G. Mennen Williams, who had no Democratic primary opposition in his bid for an unprecedented fourth straight term.

In West Virginia, Sen. Matthew M. Neely was running far ahead of his three opponents in the principal race in the Democratic primary there.

Facing Short was State Sen. Noel Cox, whose election cry was "It's time for a change."

Five of Missouri's Democratic congressmen and one Republican were nominated without opposition. Two Democrats and one Republican facing opposition were well ahead.

In Michigan's Democratic primary for U.S. senator, Patrick V. McNamara, an AFL leader, held a 2-1 lead over the late Blair Moody, who piled up a memorial vote with CIO backing. Sen. Homer Ferguson won the Republican nomination without opposition.

George Docking, Lawrence banker, pulled steadily ahead of Mayor William C. Salome of Wichita in Kansas' Democratic primary for governor. The count in 938 complete and 173 incomplete precincts gave Docking 18,049, Salome 14,490.

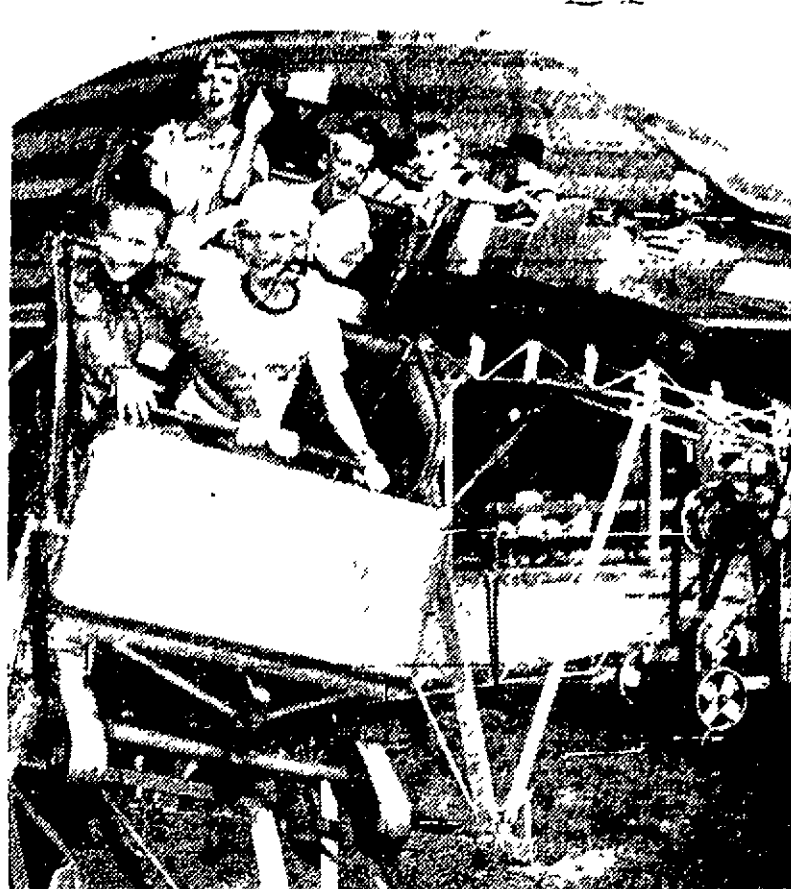

Sen. Andrew F. Schoepel, seeking a second term, was running far ahead of two rivals for renomination in Kansas' GOP primary. In the Democratic senatorial race George McGill took a wide lead over Ewell Stewart.

Senators To Probe Joe Sought

'Nobody Lobbying For Assignment'—Ferguson

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders started a hunt Tuesday for members of a new committee to investigate Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.) said nobody is lobbying for the assignment. But Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson (Tex.) said he doesn't "subscribe to the idea that the Senate is a bunch of cowards" and that he expects no difficulty in lining up three Democrats to serve.

His opposite number in the Republican party, Sen. Knowland (Calif.) stood by predictions the committee would be picked within 48 hours.

Nature of Trial

Ferguson, who is chairman of the GOP Policy Committee, told newsmen the committee hearings in his opinion should be "in the nature of a trial."

"This has a semblance," he said, "of being a criminal case as well as a civil case."

As a former judge, he said, he thought the trial could be completed in two five-day working weeks. Many senators consider that estimate far too optimistic.

Sidestep

Sidestepping a direct, immediate showdown on the issue of condemning McCarthy's conduct, the Senate voted 75-12 to turn over charges against the Wisconsin senator to a special committee of three Republicans and three Democrats.

Knowland predicted the Senate can wind up its legislative chores by Aug. 14.

News Around The Globe

Fund Bill Tackled

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Tuesday night tackled one of the biggest supplemental money bills in peacetime history. Democrats charged the administration with "negligence" and "hokum" for having failed to include several of the items in regular appropriation bills already passed.

The bill carries more than two billion dollars, about half of it for military construction. The latter item includes an administration request for 175 million dollars for housing to be built and owned by the armed services.

'Miss G' Sought

TOKYO (Wednesday) (INS)—Japanese police said they were searching for a beautiful Chinese mystery woman who they believe is directing the operations of a Communist spy ring throughout Japan.

Police inspectors referred to the woman as "Miss G" and reported she is not new to the spy game. They said she worked against the Japanese during the last war and came to Japan after 1945 to continue her espionage activities.

Daughter Held

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former Yugoslav now doing secret work for the U.S. Army Tuesday night preserved careful silence on reports that Yugoslavia is holding his 21-year-old daughter as a hostage in an effort to lure him back for execution.

Andrej Giussic, a wiry, intense man, declined to discuss his daughter's case with a reporter who located him at his Washington home. He said he did not want to prejudice the girl's chances of getting out of Yugoslavia.

5-Year Sentence

WILMINGTON, Del. (INS)—Frederick O. Hammer, 46, was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $1,000 Tuesday in connection with the shooting of his estranged wife, Mrs. Andrea Luckenbach Hammer, heiress to a shipping fortune.

Judge Green pronounced sentence on Hammer only on a charge of carrying a concealed deadly weapon, a .32-caliber revolver. The Lexington, Ky., man faces trial in September on two more serious charges of assault with intent to commit murder.

Two Questioned

CLEVELAND (AP)—Two men, one from Bay Village and one from Lorain, were questioned Tuesday night by detectives investigating the July 4 slaying of Mrs. Marilyn Sheppard.

The Bay Village man was released after signing a statement at central police station. The other, identified only as a Lorain steelworker, also was taken to central station.

Armas Wins

GUATEMALA (AP)—President Carlos Castillo Armas announced Tuesday night that defiant army units at nearby Aurora military base surrendered to an ultimatum by the ruling military junta.

Castillo Armas said it was not necessary to launch an attack in view of the surrender by the Aurora garrison, which apparently had contracted to oppose the regular army's agreement with the ruling military junta.

Welch Threatened

BOSTON (INS)—Atty. Joseph N. Welch, Army counsel in the televised Army-McCarthy hearings, Tuesday night was escorted to a secret hideaway under police guard following a tip that an attempt was to be made on his life. Local and state police plus the FBI combined efforts to locate a Washington, D.C., man, armed with a German Luger pistol whose wife reported to Washington authorities that he had left home with the avowed intention of killing Welch.

Killer's Story May Release Prison Inmate

DAVENPORT (AP)—The confession by the slayer of an Iowa farmer may mean freedom for a man now in prison in Texas who has served 18 months of a 15 year term on an armed robbery charge, the Davenport Democrat said Tuesday night.

The Democrat said it had learned that William G. Karston, 29, of Hamilton, Ill., had told authorities he had committed the robbery of a drug store in El Paso, Tex., in 1952 for which Kenneth Massey, 27, was sentenced after a trial to the Huntsville, Tex., state penitentiary.

Karston and his half-brother, Almer Anderson, 22, of South St. Paul, Minn., have pleaded guilty to the slaying July 25 of Wendell W. Jones, 56, in his farm home near Pulaski, Iowa. Hearings now are under way at Bloomfield, Iowa, to determine whether the two shall hang or be given life sentences.

On the basis of statements taken from Karston, Sheriff Jimmy Hicks of El Paso has reopened the file of Massey and has asked Bloomfield authorities for more information and a photograph of Karston, the Democrat said.

The Democrat said it has dispatched a picture of Karston to an El Paso newspaper which had requested it.

During his trial in Texas, the newspaper reported, Massey repeatedly protested his innocence of the robbery charge. But the manager and an employee of the drug store both positively identified Massey as the man.

Nunan Gets 5 Years Huge Fine

NEW YORK (AP)—The former boss of the nation's tax collectors, Joseph D. Nunan Jr., was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $15,000 Tuesday as an income tax cheater.

He was convicted of evading $91,086 in personal income taxes. "His failure to properly account for and pay his own taxes emphasizes his guilt," declared federal Judge Walter Bruchhausen as Nunan stood stiffly before the bench.

Evidently seeking to make an example of Nunan, just others in high places be tempted to break their trust for personal gain, the judge added:

"The fraud practiced by the defendant cannot be condoned. There must be adequate punishment."

Nunan was appointed U.S. commissioner of Internal Revenue by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and served from 1944 to 1947. He showed no emotion as the brief, handwritten sentence was read by the judge.

He still has a perjury charge pending against him. He was indicted on five counts accusing him of making false statements to government agents and the grand jury which investigated his income tax affairs.

Nunan was accused of launching his tax-chisel activities during the last two years he served as collector of Internal Revenue, and continuing for three more years, to 1950.

Mrs. Abel said she was hopeful that her own campaign would succeed and would "discredit those who have said that a woman cannot be elected to a state or national office in Nebraska."

Apology Offered By Demo Ritchie

OMAHA (AP)—William Ritchie of Omaha Tuesday offered an apology to his opponent for the Democratic nomination for governor for a campaign statement made by Ritchie on Saturday.

Ritchie's apology came after P. J. Heaton of Sidney labeled as "ridiculous and a bald-faced lie," the charge that he favors the return of bingo to Omaha.

"Personally, I'm sorry I was misinformed regarding Mr. Heaton's position on bingo," Ritchie said. "I apologize."

"Personally, if elected governor I shall ask the Legislature to permit bona fide church and charitable organizations to play it properly. Otherwise, I oppose its playing by clubs or other organizations and will enforce the law."

High Taxes Hit By Rep. Curtis

OMAHA (AP)—Rep. Carl T. Curtis of Minden charged Tuesday that "high taxes are destroying the desire for Nebraskans to own property."

Curtis, back in Omaha after out-state campaigning for the Republican nomination to the six-year term in the U. S. Senate, expressed "sympathy with Nebraska property owners who have seen their taxes zoom to discouraging levels."

Curtis said "excessive taxation, unreasonable taxation, will kill the incentive of individuals to produce, save and invest."

He said he had tried to ease the situation by implementing a tax reduction at the federal level, and added that as a ranking member of the House Ways and Means Committee he had played a major role in securing lower income and excise taxes.

Board Of Control End Favored

OMAHA (AP)—William Ritchie, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, said here Tuesday night he favors replacing the state Board of Control with two nonpolitical specialists.

One of the specialists would manage the state penal institutions, Ritchie said, and the other would control the state hospitals.

In remarks prepared for delivery at an open public meeting, he also said, if elected governor, he would "urge the passage of legislation to make more difficult the voting of bond issues."

'Nobody Lobbying For Assignment'—Ferguson

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders started a hunt Tuesday for members of a new committee to investigate Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) said nobody is lobbying for the assignment. But democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson (Tex.) said he doesn't "subscribe to the idea that the Senate is a bunch of cowards" and that he expects no difficulty in lining up three Democrats to serve.

His opposite number in the Republican party, Sen. Knowland (Calif) stood by predictions the committee would be picked within 48 hours.

Ferguson, who is chairman of the GOP Policy Committee, told newsmen the committee hearings in his opinion should be "in the nature of a trial."

"This has a semblance," he said, "of being a criminal case as well as a civil case."

As a former judge, he said, he thought the trial could be completed in two five-day working weeks. Many senators consider that estimate far too optimistic.

Sidestep

Sidestepping a direct, immediate showdown on the issue of condemning McCarthy's conduct, the Senate voted 75-12 to turn over charges against the Wisconsin senator to a special committee of three Republicans and three Democrats.

Knowland predicted the Senate can wind up its legislative chores by Aug. 14.

News Around The Globe

Fund Bill Tackled

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Tuesday night tackled one of the biggest supplemental money bills in peacetime history. Democrats charged the administration with "negligence" and "hokum" for having failed to include several of the items in regular appropriation bills already passed.

The bill carries more than two billion dollars, about half of it for military construction. The latter item includes an administration request for 175 million dollars for housing to be built and owned by the armed services.

'Miss G' Sought

TOKYO (Wednesday) (INS)—Japanese police said they were searching for a beautiful Chinese mystery woman who they believe is directing the operations of a Communist spy ring throughout Japan.

Police inspectors referred to the woman as "Miss G" and reported she is no newcomer to the spy game. They said she worked against the Japanese during the last war and came to Japan after 1945 to continue her espionage activities.

Daughter Held

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former Yugoslav now doing secret work for the U. S. Army Tuesday night preserved careful silence on reports that Yugoslavia is holding his 21-year-old daughter as a hostage in an effort to lure him back for execution.

Andrej Glusic, a wiry, intense man, declined to discuss his daughter's case with a reporter who located him at his Washington home. He said he did not want to prejudice the girl's chances of getting out of Yugoslavia.

5-Year Sentence

WILMINGTON, Del. (INS)—Frederick O. Hammer, 46, was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $1,000 Tuesday in connection with the shooting of his estranged wife, Mrs. Andrea Luckenbach Hammer, heiress to a shipping fortune.

Judge Green pronounced sentence on Hammer only on a charge of carrying a concealed deadly weapon, a .32-caliber revolver. The Lexington, Ky., man faces trial in September on two more serious charges of assault with intent to commit murder.

Two Questioned

CLEVELAND (AP)—Two men, one from Bay Village and one from Lorain, were questioned Tuesday night by detectives investigating the July 4 slaying of Mrs. Marilyn Sheppard.

The Bay Village man was released after signing a statement at central police station. The other, identified only as a Lorain steelworker, also was taken to central station.

Armas Wins

GUATEMALA (AP)—President Carlos Castillo Armas announced Tuesday night that defiant army units at nearby Aurora military base surrendered to an ultimatum by the ruling military junta.

Castillo Armas said it was not necessary to launch an attack in view of the surrender by the Aurora garrison, which apparently had continued to oppose the regular army's agreement with the ruling military junta.

Welch Threatened

BOSTON (INS)—Atty. Joseph N. Welch, Army counsel in the televised Army-McCarthy hearings, Tuesday night was escorted to a secret hideaway under police guard following a tip that an attempt was to be made on his life. Local and state police plus the FBI combined efforts to locate a Washington, D.C., man armed with a German Luger pistol whose wife reported to Washington authorities that he had left home with the avowed intention of killing Welch.

Killer's Story May Release Prison Inmate

DAVENPORT (AP)—The confession by the slayer of an Iowa farmer may mean freedom for a man now in prison in Texas who has served 18 months of a 15 year term on an armed robbery charge, the Davenport Democrat said Tuesday night.

The Democrat said it had learned that William G. Karston, 29, of Hamilton, Ill., had told authorities he had committed the robbery of a drug store in El Paso, Tex., in 1952 for which Kenneth Massey, 27, was sentenced after a trial to the Huntsville, Tex., state penitentiary.

Karston and his half-brother, Almer Anderson, 22, of South St. Paul, Minn., have pleaded guilty to the slaying July 25 of Luckenbach Hammer, heiress to a shipping fortune.

Judge Green pronounced sentence on Karston only on a charge of carrying a concealed deadly weapon, a .32-caliber revolver. The Lexington, Ky., man faces trial in September on two more serious charges of assault with intent to commit murder.

During his trial in Texas, the newspaper reported, Massey repeatedly protested his innocence of the robbery charge. But the manager and an employee of the drug store both positively identified Massey as the man.

Nunan Gets 5 Years Huge Fine

NEW YORK (AP)—The former boss of the nation's tax collectors, Joseph D. Nunan Jr., was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $15,000 Tuesday as an income tax cheater.

He was convicted of evading $91,086 in personal income taxes. "His failure to properly account for and pay his own taxes emphasizes his guilt," declared federal Judge Walter Bruchhausen as Nunan stood stiffly before the bench.

Evidently seeking to make an example of Nunan, lest others in high places be tempted to break their trust for personal gain, the judge added:

"The fraud practiced by the defendant cannot be condoned. There must be adequate punishment."

Nunan was appointed U.S. commissioner of Internal Revenue by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and served from 1944 to 1947. He showed no emotion as the brief, handwritten sentence was read by the judge.

He still has a perjury charge pending against him. He was indicted on five counts accusing him of making false statements to government agents and the grand jury which investigated his income tax affairs.

Nunan was accused of launching his tax-chisel activities during the last two years he served as collector of Internal Revenue, and continuing for three more years, to 1950.

Conferees Hit A-Bill Agreement

...No New Filibuster Seen

WASHINGTON (INS)—A Senate-House conference committee reached substantial agreement Tuesday on an atomic energy bill designed to prevent a new outbreak of the filibuster that stymied the legislation in the Senate for 13 days last month.

Under the compromise, the Atomic Energy Commission would be authorized to build and operate giant electric power stations for "demonstration" but not for "commercial" purposes. Congress would retain the usual power to deny funds for any specific project.

Rep. Chet Holifield, Calif., a leading Democratic spokesman in the power fight, said he was "willing to accept" the power compromise, and that agreement on the new provision "could be considered unanimous."

The one possible snag in the accord is a dispute over whether to allow exclusive patents on atomic inventions. The conferees will meet at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday to consider a proposal that would allow patents but would provide penalties for their use in violation of the anti-trust laws.

No Marathon

If the final draft of the measure carries the signatures of all 10 conferees, it is considered unlikely that another marathon debate will be launched against it in the Senate.

The filibuster was conducted by public-power proponents, who charged that the administration's atomic-energy revision bill contained "giveaway" provisions loaded in favor of private interests.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-NY) conference chairman, said a report clearing the way for possible final congressional action this week probably will be completed Wednesday.

Sen. Edwin Johnson (D-Colo.), who sponsored a Senate amendment which would permit the AEC to operate power stations as well as to license private operators, said the compromise "looks hopeful" but declined to commit himself on final approval until the report is completed.

'Cost Yardstick'

Committeemen said the effect of the power compromise would be that the AEC could build a "demonstration" station and use it as a "cost yardstick" for other stations of the same type to be built by private firms.

The tentative measure includes an amendment by Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) to prohibit federal income tax exemptions or reimbursement in power contracts let by the AEC.

Also included is the amendment by Sen. Homer Ferguson (R-Mich.) authorizing implementation of the controversial Dixon-Yates contract at West Memphis, Tenn., but under the Gore proposal income exemption features of the 107 million dollar agreement would be eliminated.

Cole listed these other points on which agreement was reached:

1. Elimination of a clause giving Congress veto power over international agreements concerning atomic energy.
2. Acceptance of an amendment providing that the AEC must maintain a division dealing with "civilian applications" of atomic energy.
3. Elimination of a provision that uranium mining leases on public lands must be let by competitive bidding, with the understanding that the question will be given further study at the next session of Congress.
4. Retention of amendments providing that preference be given to cooperative and public bodies in the location of power stations; and for regulations governing the issuance of licenses for such stations and for the sale of power by the government.

Outside Firms May Prepare Special Plans

A manpower shortage in the city engineering department is expected to result in the preparation of plans and specifications for special improvement districts by outside engineering firms.

This decision by Mayor Clark Jeary came as a result of a meeting with department officials and some 22 Lincoln home builders. The builders asked for the meeting to present their complaint that there were bottlenecks to new home construction in the city.

The builders specifically stated that it takes too long to have special improvement districts, water, sewer and paving, constructed in new housing developments.

The engineering department explained that a lack of manpower has stopped the department from getting at work when it should be done. City Engineer D. L. Erickson has previously stated that efforts to hire young engineers with the city's wage scale have been fruitless.

"We have asked the engineering department," Jeary said, "for a complete list of all such improvement projects that they are behind on. It is quite possible that the jobs will be turned over to outside engineering firms, preferably local firms."

The mayor stated that the engineering manpower problem is something the City Council will have to wrestle with in adopting the 1954-55 fiscal year budget. The pattern has been set in other cities. Jeary said, where the same thing has been experienced and salaries have been increased.

Bess Streeter Aldrich

Bess Streeter Aldrich, distinguished throughout America for her gift to the literature of this country, was more than the writer of enchanting midwestern stories and books which invariably brought her readers a little closer to the real heart and soul of the American Midlands. She was a great woman with a remarkable appreciation of the sweetness and the satisfactions of life to be gained in the last great citadel of what we call rural America.

Mrs. Aldrich was a humble woman. Nothing that came by way of acceptance or fame in connection with the publication of her first novel, "Rim of the Prairie," or the later success of "A Lantern in Her Hand" or numerous other works which came from her pen ever blinded that quality of the human touch, Mrs. Aldrich knew people. She recognized those homely qualities which contributed to character and invariably in all that she wrote, she was able to infuse her writings with a strength and a virility that left people the better for having read what she had written.

It was a source, naturally, of infinite satisfaction to her. She gave painstaking attention to craftsmanship and yet in achieving it in a very large measure she never permitted it to submerge or diminish the character of those who became her fictional figures. Her publishers were avid for material from her. And yet it may surprise some that when Mrs. Aldrich in at least one instance doubted her own capacity to do a certain book, she recommended to her publisher another whom she felt could do it. She had the satisfaction of knowing that she left a permanent impression upon American thinking, that her writings were revered by a wide following of readers, and that the character and the aspirations of a pioneer generation living in a rural environment attained a new stature in America's thought because she became the knowing, sympathetic, loving, articulate voice for that era of American life.

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

Near the close of Nebraska's primary campaign, Iowa's Ben Jensen contributes a sparkling new chapter to the Gavins-Point-Belden story, centering upon the efforts of Nebraska's representatives for the construction of a proposed power transmission line to serve Nebraska power users, particularly rural customers. Rep. Jensen suavely expresses the hope that the battle for funds for this transmission line isn't becoming "a political football in Nebraska." So there is no misunderstanding about this, the funds Uncle Sam is asked to advance for the transmission line are not in the nature of a gift. They are in the form of a loan, amortized over a period of years as a debt owing to the federal treasury, to be paid back but when paid back the facility becomes the property of the public power system in Nebraska.

Jensen noted that Rep. Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska and Gov. Robert Crosby have been unable to get House committee approval for construction of the transmission line. Both are candidates for the Senate. Then he adds: "Carl Curtis has done everything in his power to get funds appropriated for this Gavins-Point-Belden transmission line. I have as much respect for Curtis as for any member of the House. . . . Curtis has worked as hard for this project as any member of Congress but it just doesn't tie in with the yardstick my committee uses for justifying the project." Then Jensen explains that his committee had adopted as policy a program of advancing funds for transmission lines from a federal power project to the state line of an adjoining state but from there on state or private interests should finance necessary feeder lines. We trust that after getting that doctrine off his chest, Rep. Jensen indulged himself in one huge, broad smile. In the instance of Gavins Point, it is a short jaunt to the Nebraska line, a longer one from the Nebraska line to Belden.

But there it is in a nutshell. We are told one moment that the Eisenhower administration is not hostile to the expansion of the public power program. We are told in the next breath that under a new policy adopted, funds for the construction of a transmission line—a loan, not a gift—are not now available. In other words, after 16 years in the House Mr. Curtis with all of his accumulated seniority has not been able to convert his Republican colleagues to accepting a yardstick through which the public power program came into existence. Neither have Sen. Bowring, Sen. Reynolds, nor Gov. Crosby. There has been a change in thinking back in Washington. That change, Rep. Jensen insists, means simply that the Gavins-Point-Belden transmission line is not in the works.

Obviously a kindly, neighborly Republican colleague has undertaken to do his bit towards taking Carl Curtis off the hot seat in connection with the construction of the Gavins-Point-Belden transmission line. Both Mr. Curtis and Gov. Crosby, Rep. Jensen wants Nebraskans to understand, fought bravely to get adequate funds for this development. Before his death, Sen. Hugh Butler was nursing it along and it can be said that except for Mr. Butler's determined intervention, funds for the line would have been tossed out weeks and possibly months ago. Senators Bowring and Reynolds, we are given to understand—and we might add Rep. Miller—have made the fight for adequate funds for the construction of this vital transmission line if Nebraskans are to get their share of the power from developments on the upper Missouri. But it isn't in the works. There has been a change back in Washington. That change is affecting the Pacific Northwest in its power development. It is equally noticeable here in the Middle West. It has reflected itself more recently in connection with developments in TVA.

Naturally the farming states concerned with the healthy progress of the REA program, including Nebraska's districts, may not like the turn in events. But let's face up with the facts. Carl Curtis, we are told, did his best to get funds for the Gavins-Point-Belden line but in the light of a changed policy, his best is not good enough. That goes for Gov. Crosby, for Sen. Reynolds, for Sen. Bowring, and the others. Then they turn around and seek election on the basis of support for a policy which nullifies all of their hard work.

velopment will show that nothing today all the way around the globe compares with our county fairs. Continental Europe and England had their fairs, to be sure, back in medieval times, but for the most part they were elaborate markets of trade for the selling and exchanging of a variety of products. England, with ever an astute eye to the shilling and the bob, was the first to add entertainment for the paying customer.

Our own fairs in this country came into being about 135 years ago in New York state upon the proposal of a well-to-do Albany merchant for a series of annual agricultural exhibits. From the exhibit basis, they grew by leaps and bounds, with carnivals on the midway—pink lemonade, cotton candy, and sideshow barker hawkers their wares—blending into the colorful picture. Local competitive spirit continued to hold its rightful place before the cheering grandstand. We remember such a contest a few years ago as a magnificent team of blue roans, great hulking masses of beautifully matched horseflesh, took their places in glittering harness and at a given command bowed their heads and strained those mighty muscles forward in a co-ordination that was thrilling to watch, to win for their master the coveted purple in weight-pulling.

The long lines of home-canned fruits and vegetables are a part of it. The bread and muffins and cooking, the quilts and afghans and fine needlework. The flower exhibits, the educational displays, the machinery. The ears of corn, row upon perfect row, best of Nebraska fields. And the big, pompous pumpkins that have captured the glow of Nebraska sunsets.

And a part of it, too, are the blue-jeaned and white-shirted boys and girls who come proudly to show the animals they have groomed and cared for in earnest preparation for weeks ahead, tomorrow's farmers and homemakers who in a few years' time will be helping youngsters of their own to select a calf or a lamb "good enough for county fair."

Time To Investigate

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee is experiencing big-scale opposition in his bid for renomination. Interests outside of Tennessee, it is said, have had the effrontery to deluge the state with all that money can buy in order to drive a wedge between him and the voters who have heretofore been well satisfied with his service.

It is something that should cause other states to view thoughtfully. Selecting a senator is a family affair, a sovereign right of the people of a state. When outside interests decide to nominate a state's candidates and defeat others, it is a form of usurpation that is at once a grab at state sovereignty and an affront to the citizens. What is said to be going on in Tennessee should be brought to an immediate investigation. If the evidence of intervention is serious, the practice should be nipped in the bud with smashing punishment lest toleration encourage a general adoption of an un-American practice.

Need Quick Write-Off

The new Eisenhower tax bills has a saving for everyone, although some get bigger savings. The head of the family gets a more generous deduction for doctor bills and the housewife can claim a deduction on what she spends for baby-sitting. One can understand the theory behind that. Like believes if taxes are made easy for employers, there will be no unemployment problem. Baby-sitting is becoming a big service business. While Mother may appreciate the deduction, we feel that Father would prefer the other administration aid to business, namely a quick write-off applied to amortizing the cost of raising the children. It would be nice to have that expense out of the way in five years.

Inside Issues In A-Power Filibuster

WASHINGTON—Chances are that Congress has not seen the last of the record-making 13-day filibuster over the future control of atomic energy. Another filibuster may be just around the corner.

Despite the hot weather and the hot air, however, nothing could be more important to you and your children. For this bill spells out a pattern for the energy that will turn the factory wheels and power plants of the nation beginning perhaps in less than 25 years.

Reason for a possible new filibuster is that congressional conferees are now haggling to adjust the differences between the House bill and the Senate bill—especially the important amendments which the Senate put into the A-bill thanks to the harassing force of the 13-day filibuster.

The House conferees are determined to knock these out. Furthermore, the predominant majority of the Senate conferees are old school reactionaries whose neck-bristles are already up over the Senate amendments.

To understand what the haggling and filibustering is all about, here is a thumbnail sketch of the more important disputed amendments and what they mean to you and the future economy of the nation.

Water power sites and atomic energy—One vital amendment introduced by Sen. Humphrey, Minnesota Democrat, applies the rules of the Federal Power Commission to the leasing of federal fissionable materials.

What this means is that since falling water which generates water power is regulated by the government, the neutrons which have been developed by the government at a cost of $12 billions likewise are to be regulated under the same rules as the leasing of water power sites.

The Federal Power Commission has built up through the years a tried-and-tested set of rules for leasing dam sites to private utilities. Power rates are based on costs, and the Power Commission has a set of rules to prevent the padding of costs.

Such padding is even more important regarding atomic power, since the private atom plants will sell plutonium back to the government, and the price they can charge the government is all-important.

If they are permitted to charge a high price they can pay for the entire cost of their plant in a few years, meanwhile using a government-developed patent.

House conferees and some senators would like to knock out this Humphrey amendment applying Federal Power Commission rules to atomic energy. They don't want the big business firms which will generate atomic power tied down by the rules of the Federal Power Commission.

Government construction of atomic reactors—An amendment introduced by Sen. Ed Johnson, Colorado Democrat, permits the government to build an atomic reactor, in other words, a plant for generating peace-time atomic power.

In contrast, Congressman Sterling Cole of New York introduced an amendment providing that the government cannot build an atomic reactor. Cole wants no competition with private A-plants.

Sen. Johnson, on the other hand, argued, and the Senate finally agreed, that just as the government built Boulder dam, Grand Coulee, Bonneville, etc., to serve as a competitive yardstick to private power companies, so the government should also build its own atomic energy plant to serve as a similar yardstick.

Sen. Hickenlooper, Iowa Republican, in charge of the Senate bill for Eisenhower, at first introduced an amendment directly contrary to Johnson, providing that the government could not build a reactor. Then he withdrew it, when Senate infighting got tough. He will undoubtedly vote in the conference committee, however, to knock out Johnson's safeguards.

Anti-monopoly—Sen. Langer of North Dakota, the only Republican successfully introducing a modifying amendment, tacked onto the bill a safeguard against violation of the Sherman antitrust act. If any company producing atomic energy shall be convicted of violating the antitrust laws, Langer specified, its license automatically reverts to the United States, which shall license it royalty free.

When this proposal came up for debate, Hickenlooper was inclined to favor some kind of anti-monopoly safeguards, but observed: "Perhaps this is too important to act on in a hurry. Perhaps we should hold hearings on this provision."

"That's exactly the point we've been making," replied Langer. "We've been trying to tell you that this whole bill was too important to be rushed through Congress in record time."

What Langer referred to was the fact that the Senate received committee prints of the atom bill only one day before debate started. It was obviously impossible to study such an important bill in one day; on top of which Sen. Knowland expected to pass it in one additional day of debate.

Opponents of the bill suspected that it had been purposely saved until the last minute in order to ram it through in the hot and hectic closing days of Congress without too many senators realizing its significance.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Mendes-France And Adenauer Plan Talk

BONN, WEST GERMANY—West Germany's venerable Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will interrupt his holiday this week at his retreat in the black forest to go to Brussels for a meeting of the Council of Europe. There he will meet Premier Mendes-France and together they will work out the adjustments that the French premier considers essential if the French National Assembly is to ratify the European Defense Community treaty.

These adjustments will not mean basic changes in the treaty but rather interpretations spelled out for the assembly so that, after EDC comes into being, the Council of Ministers can make the changes within the EDC framework. Then at the same time the settlement of the Saar, that long and bitter dispute, issue over the province lying between France and Germany with its rich coal and steel industry, will also go into effect. As the result of lengthy negotiations, the Saar settlement is said to be 99 per cent worked out.

This will be the course of events if the official optimism of the Adenauer government is, in fact, justified. Talking with this reporter, Vice-Chancellor Franz Blucher made it evident that Germany will not accept the kind of limited sovereignty under discussion in Paris as an alternative to EDC.

Short of EDC, already ratified by Germany, Belgium, Luxembourg, and Holland, a great gap opens up. Great Britain and the United States have proposed that if there is no action at all in France they will grant sovereignty to Germany and end the occupation in their zones. This would leave the French zone still under occupation and, as Wilhelm Meines, vice-chairman of the Social Democratic party expressed it to this writer, it would mean still another division of divided Germany.

In short, the outlook is perfectly hideous if in these last critical days EDC is finally sunk. American High Commissioner James Conant sees serious turmoil within Germany should the worst happen. This helps to explain the official optimism within the Adenauer government and within the high commissioner's office, an attitude maintained so long that it is like a grin frozen in hopeful perpetuity.

As an official optimist reflecting the iron determination of the elderly chancellor, Vice-Chancellor Blucher is even willing to look beyond the coming into being of EDC. It will be time, he says, after EDC is created and the German divisions are being formed and equipped to hold another four-power conference with the Russians. The latest invitation from Moscow should be refused, in Blucher's view, but it is not enough, he holds, to go on saying "no." To satisfy the widespread demand in British and Western Europe for negotiation in the next few months and certainly within the year the three allied powers must sit down again with the Soviets.

On unification of East and West Germany, Blucher believes it can come peacefully after EDC has given Europe such strength that the Russians will understand they can no longer succeed with their tactics of divide and conquer. Looking ahead, the vice-chancellor who plays an important role in the Bonn administration, comparable to that of Vice-President Nixon in Washington sees unification resulting from prolonged negotiation with Moscow.

The Russians fear not so much the loss of East Germany itself as the defection of Poland and Czechoslovakia under pressure from the West. Therefore, in the course of negotiation assurances could be given as a quid pro quo for withdrawal from East Germany that the West would respect the present status of Poland and Czechoslovakia.

For many Americans that kind of bargain would look like appeasement, particularly in view of the political appeals to American citizens of Czech and Polish descent. But for Europeans, and especially for Germans in the center of Europe, the more-or-less-inevitable battleground, the shape of things to come must have some such look since the contemplation of atomic warfare is intolerable. For Blucher, as for many others in this determinedly anti-Communist government, the future, based on resolute hope, is seen in three phases.

First is the present, with the creation of EDC and a strong unified Europe. In the second phase Russia accepts this reality and, gradually, practical co-existence between the two spheres develops. In the third phase the Russians, realizing that united Europe is a force permanently to be reckoned with, abandon their aggressive aims, and co-existence by mutual understanding comes into being.

If this sounds to Americans like a cross between a naive dream and a nightmare it nevertheless is the thinking of responsible men in this country, a nation that, American policy holds to be vital to American security. And, therefore, it is one of the facts of life to be reckoned with.

Nehru Gives India's View

Editor's note: India's leader says his country does not intend to align itself either with the West which is warlike or with communism which is equally looking to security through belligerent instrumentalities. While it offers friendship to both, it expects subservience to neither. India's higher mission is to provide housing for peace to which troubled areas can turn, from which tranquility and friendship can emanate. His following explanation was published in The India News.

Our background has been conditioned by our struggle for freedom under Gandhi's leadership which taught us peaceful methods and tolerance; friendship with other nations but at the same time independence of action. Inevitably it was opposed to colonialism or domination of one country by another. It was based on democracy and freedom of the individual and social progress aiming at a society where there was no exploitation by one class over another and where present inequalities, social or economic, were gradually removed.

Our present foreign policy flows from that background and naturally works for world peace and avoidance of war. That is not only the natural ideal for us but it is dictated by every consideration of intelligent self-interest. Non-alignment with the great power groups also follows.

Any alignment means tying ourselves up with other powers and being conditioned by the wishes or the decisions of other countries. A weak country doing so becomes a subservient country and it is increasingly difficult for it to break away from those bonds.

The future progress of our country and other countries in Asia depends primarily on the continuance of peace. None can guarantee peace for an indefinite number of years. But we feel that even a few years gained is something worth striving for and the longer this interval of peace, the less chance there is of war in the future. I need not refer to the horrible aspect of modern war with its atomic and hydrogen bombs and other weapons which should really put war out of the picture completely.

At present there are two major forces in the world—the fear of the United States of America and of Communism and Communist countries which they think are expansionist and aiming at world domination; and the other, the fear of Communist countries of being encircled and crushed by expansionist tendencies of other countries. They point to a large number of bases surrounding them from where, presumably, atomic and hydrogen bombs can be hurled at them.

Whatever truth there may be in these fears, the fact that they exist is relevant enough. The other fact is also equally relevant that in the existing balance of forces neither side can compel the other to surrender in peace or war. What then are the alternatives?

It is possible to find some way of peaceful existence with all these countries, some recognition of facts as they are without trying to change them basically or, must we rule this out? If peaceful existence is considered not possible then we confess defeat for the only alternative is war.

We in India, and I believe in many other countries in Asia, believe that such a peaceful existence is possible provided it is clearly understood that one country must not interfere with another and try to impose itself or its ideologies, political or economic, on another. The importance of recent statements of India, China and Burma lies in the emphasis on this approach.

It is said: How can we put faith in such declarations? In international affairs one can never be dead certain and friends of today might be enemies of tomorrow. That may be so. Are we then to begin with enmity and suspicion and not give any other approach a chance? Surely it is better with nations as with individuals to hope for and expect the best, but at the same time be prepared for any eventuality. Not to do so again is to accept defeat right from the beginning.

We do not accept the Communist philosophy though we certainly accept the idea of equality, of ending the exploitation of human beings and of raising the underprivileged. We do not agree with some of the policies of the United States of America and do not fully appreciate many things that America stands for today.

Whether we agree or disagree with any of these countries we do not see why we should not be friendly with them and co-operate with them in such measure as possible, but always retaining our own individuality as a nation and holding to our own ideals.

'Burdensome Surpluses'

Lincoln, Neb.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Much has been written and spoken concerning the farm surplus problem. The following from the August issue of "Successful Farming" clears up a lot of mistaken ideas, I believe:

"With the term, 'burdensome surpluses,' fast becoming the bogeyman of agriculture, editors of 'Successful Farming' decided to find out just how 'burdensome' these 'surpluses' really are.

"We found that like many things, it depends a lot on how you look at it. For instance, 392,441,000 bushels of corn sounds like a lot of corn. It is a lot of corn. But less than 2 1/2 bushels per person isn't much corn—about enough to make 20 pounds of pork ready for the table.

"The nine-figure number of bushels of corn above is the amount in Commodity Credit Corporation inventory as of May 12, 1954. The 2 1/2 bushels is the chunk of that inventory you own—what you, one citizen, have squirreled away in the government cellar. Come war, crop failure, or king-size bugs after the corn crop, a scant 2 1/2 bushels is all the government owns to protect you from a meat shortage.

"But the butter surplus is worse, you say. Yes, but not really. Here's one on a per capita basis. You own 2 1/2 pounds of this delightful spread—that's one citizen's share of the 373,452,600 pounds the government had on May 12.

"Or consider wheat: Your share is 3 1/2 bushels. Or upland cotton, the cotton used for shirts, dresses, and so on. You have less than half a pound.

"We aren't arguing for stocks at any particular level—just looking at them from a different angle.

"We asked some congressional leaders how they view our CCC inventories. They are in a position to get all the facts.

"Congressman Clifford R. Hope, chairman, House Agriculture Committee: 'Outside of wheat, cotton, and dairy products, we have no surpluses that I would call burdensome.'

"Sen. George D. Aiken, chairman, Senate Agriculture Committee: 'We're only running 3 or 4 years ahead of population now.'

"Congressman Charles Hoveen, Iowa: 'Secretary Benson said we have a 4-months supply of corn. In my opinion that isn't enough.'

"Yes, there are many differences to look at our CCC inventories—as a 'burdensome surplus,' as a strategic reserve, or as a justifiable by-product of the price-support program.

"Perhaps the most 'burdensome' part of the 'surplus' is the incessant talk about it—hurting farmers in the eyes of the rest of the country."

KENNETH RUSSELL

Co-op Taxes

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Mr. Mason, the Nebraska representative of the National Tax Equality Association, is perturbed over my criticism of his organization. He says that as a director of the association, he is convinced the NTEA is not out to drive the REA, credit unions, co-op grain and oil concerns to the wall, but he persists in coming up with the argument that co-ops don't pay taxes.

Mr. Mason says: "Farmers, fruit growers, and like associations organized on a co-operative basis are specifically exempted (from federal taxation) by Sec. 101 (12) of the Internal Revenue Code." They are not specifically exempted. They must apply for and meet specific qualifications before being granted any exemptions and only farmer-organized and farmer-controlled associations can qualify. The so-called advantages afforded by these exemptions are blown up out of all proportions by the NTEA. First, if a co-op has outstanding preferred stock, the interest paid thereon is not taxed against the co-op but against co-op owners. Actually little advantage is derived as very few co-ops have issued preferred stock. Secondly, under this exemption the co-op must operate its business on a non-profit basis and maintain a simple accounting system. Of 37 co-ops checked in Nebraska, only 101 have ever applied for exemption under 101 (12). These exemptions apply only to federal taxes and in no manner exempt co-ops from state, county or local taxes.

The NTEA has long contended that co-ops retain their profits and pay no taxes on the accumulated profits. Mr. Mason echoes their wild propaganda that co-ops are expanding on "tax-free" money. He implies that this is permissible under Sec. 101 (12) of the Internal Code. The law says no such thing. I should like to have Mr. Mason explain the difference between the "pieces of paper" issued by co-ops and the same pieces of paper issued as stock dividends by the big corporations and do it without resorting to the "in effect" qualifications. In truth and fact, if the majority of co-op members want their co-op's earnings in cash, they get the cash. If they want it in "pieces of paper," they get them in that form. This vote is taken at every annual meeting of the members. No clique nor faction can control a co-op as no proxy voting is permissible under the law and no member has more than one vote regardless of the number of shares he may own.

The term, "allocation," as used by Mr. Mason is defined by the Internal Revenue Bureau rulings of June 3, 1953. The ruling reads: "The term, 'allocation,' includes distributions made by a co-operative association to a patron in cash, merchandise, capital stock, revolving fund certificates, retain certificates, certificates of indebtedness, letters of advice, similar documents, or in any other manner whereby there is disclosed to a patron the dollar amount apportioned on the books of the association for the account of such person." Under this same ruling, it reads: "The dollar amount allocated shall be included in the computation of the gross income of such patron for the taxable year in which received." Any corporation can do the same thing by merely returning its profits to its patrons and letting them file the tax.

Lets get this tax argument straight. Regular corporations have to pay a 38 per cent tax on their earnings whether they keep the earnings in the business or pay them out as dividends. The co-ops have to do exactly the same thing. If the private power interests are not out to kill them, why the big contributions to the NTEA from numbers of utilities?

I am for the principle but against the practice. Why dip into the reserves of energy when the world is spinning by too fast anyway.

I had in mind that I would do this thing this summer at the rate of a paragraph a day. Lake putting away $1 a week toward Christmas.

Now suddenly the summer is about gone. And I have spent the time singing in the barley fields and spitting tobacco juice.

I would prefer each fascinating day as it comes. Comes for instance to my breezy room in the Hollywood Knickerbocker the news of Miss Universe.

The curving perfection chosen at Long Beach from this year's crop of virginal contestants. Couple of thousand years ago, Miss Universe would go mystically to meet the Minotaur. Or leap in golden symbolic glory into a sacred pool.

Now Miss Universe gets a six-month Hollywood contract and a trip around North America to meet the Junior Chambers of Commerce.

This is a good deal more satisfying than the adoration of a savage populace while the high priest performs fatal surgery. And I believe it proves we have come a long civilized way.

Let us take another civilized step and not demand that our scribes "get ahead." Lake Miss Universe, better ones come up each year.

I have made quite a study of Miss Universes and Miss Americas. Because I think it is an important subject.

The adoration of a Mr. 5-by-5 for Miss 30-24-36.

I note that judges at Atlantic City and Long Beach have tried to give the ladies an overlay of culture in recent years.

Ladies are gauged on something called talent. But I have yet to see a Miss America emerge without measurements that had nothing to do with her recitation of "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight."

Matter of fact, I spoke kindly to a Miss America who was singing in Paris at the time. And had her turn to a journalist with a heavier circulation.

This experience has not embittered me. And I look forward just as eagerly each year to Miss 30-24-36 and her talents. It proves to me that Nature provides lavishly. And there is no point in "getting ahead" or scurrying and saving against a gloomy future.

I am against the egg in the nest and for today's egg on the platter. I am for roistering in the taverns. And singing "God Bless Miss America."

The General Fertilizer Service Co., Fremont, with an authorized capitalization of $200,000, filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state Tuesday.

The company was formed to make or deal in various fertilizers and agricultural chemicals, the papers state. Incorporators, all of Fremont, are Walter A. Koepplin, Stewart Daniels, Victor M. Keilstrup and J. M. Rice. Keilstrup is the resident agent.

Also incorporated was the Lee Corporation, Omaha, with an authorized capitalization of $25,000 and with Monte M. Taylor and Martha B. Marchant, both of Omaha, as incorporators. Boyd L. Federal approval of three Lancaster County roads as part of the county's federal aid secondary road system has been granted. The roads are:

The Burlington railroad Tuesday asked the State Railway Commission for authority to discontinue agency service at Belmont and Moorfield, Neb., and substitute custodian or caretaker service.

Business does not justify employment of agents at the two communities, the railroad asserted.

At Belmont, located 25 miles west of Hemingford and 12.5 miles east of Crawford, revenue in the first four months of 1954 was $37.53 and expenses were $1,557.61, the application said. Last year revenue was $211.55 and expenses totaled $5,136.70, it added.

Moorefield is a town of about 56 persons located 12 miles west of Farnam and 10 miles east of Curtis. Receipts at the Moorefield agency in the first five months of this year amounted to $656.68 compared with $1,731.25 costs of operation, the application said. Receipts last year were $4,927.46 and expenses were $4,107.53, it added.

The Cedar-Rox County Rural Power District, Hartington, asked permission to build, operate and maintain certain electrical lines in Knox and Cedar Counties.

Athlete's Foot Yields to "Dry-Cream" Medication

Millions of people suffer from Athlete's Foot. Yet few of them know what causes the maddening itch. Or why their skin peels off in white dead flakes. Or why angry red cracks burn between their toes. And even fewer people know how to relieve these symptoms.

What Is The Disease?

Athlete's Foot is caused by a vegetable parasite. Under a microscope, it looks like the fungus mold you see on stale bread or cheese. This fungus grows anywhere that's moist and warm. And the human foot is one of its favorite "gardens." During the summer, excessive perspiration makes it flare up into a fiery, raging itch and soreness that drives the sufferer almost frantic.

Because the infection is hard to kill with ordinary lotions and ointments, it can spread from person to person like the plague. Especially at swimming pools, locker rooms and bathrooms, where people walk around barefoot.

Remarkable Relief

Clinical tests were made using an unusual cream (now called TING) that dries into a fine powder as it's applied. The relief obtained was remarkable. With patient after patient, this medicated "dry-cream" killed specific Athlete's Foot fungi on 60-second contact. Itching stopped. The healing of cracks was helped amazingly. And dead white skin was replaced with new healthy flesh.

Nothing Else Worked So Well

In addition to these clinical tests, thousands of cases of actual home use have testified to TING's astonishing effectiveness. People in all walks of life—many of whom had spent large sums of money treating their foot condition unsuccessfully—found that nothing else had worked so well for them as this wonderful discovery.

Money Back Guarantee

Now that TING is released, we strongly urge people with Athlete's Foot to use it. TING is greaseless, stainless, easy to apply, and costs only 69¢ and $1.10. At all druggists. Your satisfaction guaranteed—or your money refunded.

McConaughy Diversion Through Sutherland Canal Legal

An attorney general's opinion held Tuesday that it is legal for the Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District to take water released from Lake McConaughy, divert it through the Sutherland canal and then return it to the North Platte River.

State Engineer L. N. Hess asked the opinion.

Here's the question as he sketched it:

The Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District operates the storage reservoir known as Lake McConaughy on the Platte River. The central district has appropriations for the use of storage water from Lake McConaughy for the irrigation of certain lands situated below Brady.

The Platte district owns and operates the Sutherland canal, between McConaughy and a point where the central district diverts the water for irrigation. Platte runs water through the Sutherland canal, through its hydroelectric plant and then back to the river at a point about the central district's diversion works.

Hess asked if this practice is lawful. He also asked:

"Under such circumstances, does the diversion of such water into the Sutherland system operate to divert such water of its character as storage water and convert the same to natural flow upon its return to the river?"

The attorney general said the diversion and use as described are lawful and "the storage water involved does not lose its character as such, by reason of such diversion and use."

Under the circumstances described, no additional authorization from the department of roads and irrigation is necessary, the opinion added.

Attorney General C. S. Dick and Assistant Attorney General C. C. Sheldon delivered the opinion.

ation's Defense Jets, Ships To Be Placed Under One Command

... Central Warning Systm Set Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—The scattered air defenses of the United States will be placed under one central authority in September with the establishment of the continental Air Defense Command, the Pentagon announced today.

The decision was reached by the administration after a long and arduous argument within and without the military services. For the first time it gives the Air Force primary authority as well as responsibility for directing the activity of some 2,000 jet fighters, the Army's growing system of "like" anti-aircraft missiles and of the ships and aircraft operating far at sea that will be tied to a central warning and defense system.

$50 Fine Set In Case Of False Claims

Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw will be commander-in-chief of the continental defense headquarters while retaining his responsibility for the air defense command of the Air Force working directly under and with him will be Lt. Gen. John Lewis, chief of the Army's anti-aircraft command, many of those 100 plus battalions are earmarked for last ditch defense of the nation's big cities and strategic centers.

Navy Admiral

The Navy will also will be presented in the continental command by an admiral still to be selected. This flag officer, Chidlaw, will have immediate supervision of the Navy's air and surface craft assigned to the job of spotting any enemy trying to sneak across the oceans.

Gen. Chidlaw's air defense command already consists of about 25 wings equipped with some 2,000 jet fighter interceptors. Faster jet planes are already in production and will be turning this force not many months hence.

Air Guard

The new command will also be able to count on the Air National Guard's 21 squadrons. They now number some 1,500 aircraft, some of which are old piston engine fighters. But the guard is steadily being converted to an all-jet force.

The Army's principal contribution to the new command will be its rocket propelled missile.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The scattered air defenses of the United States will be placed under one central authority in September with the establishment of the Continental Air Defense Command, the Pentagon announced Tuesday.

The decision was reached by the administration after a long study and argument within and without the military services. For the first time it gives the Air Force primary authority as well as responsibility for directing the activity of some 2,000 jet fighters, the Army's growing system of "nike" anti-aircraft missiles and all of the ships and aircraft operating far at sea that will be tied into a central warning and defense system.

Gen. Benjamin W. Chidlaw will be commander-in-chief of the continental defense headquarters while retaining his responsibility for the air defense command of the Air Force. Working directly under and with him will be Lt. Gen. John Lewis, chief of the Army's anti-aircraft command, many of whose 100 plus battalions are earmarked for last ditch defense of the nation's big cities and strategic centers.

Navy Admiral

The Navy will also will be represented in the continental command by an admiral still to be selected. This flag officer, who will be directly responsible to Chidlaw, will have immediate supervision of the Navy's air and surface craft assigned to the job of spotting any enemy trying to sneak across the oceans.

Gen. Chidlaw's air defense command already consists of about 25 wings equipped with some 2,000 jet fighter interceptors. Faster jet planes are already in production and will be joining this force not many months hence.

Air Guard

The new command will also be able to count on the Air National Guard's 21 squadrons. They now number some 1,500 aircraft, some of which are old style piston engine fighters. But the guard is steadily being converted to an all-jet force.

The Army's principal contribution to the new command will be its rocket propelled missile.

As the nearest air approach to the United States would follow a line through the arctic and across Canada, heavy reliance is being placed upon three radar chains that are now in place or being worked on. Stretching from Alaska across the frozen north of Canada to Greenland is "Dew Line," for which sites are already being prepared. Canada has recently started preparation for a mid-Canada radar line and a third chain, "Pine Tree Line," is already operating from British Columbia eastward to Labrador.

$50 Fine Set In Case Of False Claims

Thomas H. McCann, 29, of 3224 O was fined $50 in Lancaster County Court after he pleaded guilty to two counts of obtaining unemployment compensation benefits by false representations.

McCann received $26 for each of two seven-day pay periods, ending May 1 and May 15, 1954, from the Nebraska Unemployment Compensation Fund.

It was charged that McCann represented himself as unemployed, available for and seeking work, whereas in fact he was attending the Lincoln Beauty Academy from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day and was not available for work during this period.

McCann told the court that if the unemployment office had found him a job, he would have quit his course at the beauty academy.

Judge Herbert Ronin gave McCann the "minimum" fine of $25 on each count and ordered him to make restitution.

Dep. Co. Atty. Rollin Bailey said McCann had received a total of $442 in unemployment benefits.

Postal Receipts Up During July

July postal receipts of $207,435.07 at the Lincoln Post Office reflected an increase of $12,767.18 for the month as compared with July, 1953.

Postmaster O. E. Jerner said receipts for the seven-month period in 1954 increased $116,730.14 as compared with the same period for 1953. The comparative figures are $1,448,880.89 for 1954 and $1,332,099.75 for 1953.

Money orders during July showed a similar increase with 12,118 issued for a total of $213,570.20 as compared with 11,477 and $185,080.05 during July, 1953.

As of July 31, postal savings had 3,762 open accounts with a total balance of $3,588,501 as compared with 4,314 accounts and $4,236,793 a year ago.

Companion Suits Seeking $43,000

Companion suits totalling $43,000 have been filed in Lancaster County District Court against Roberts Dairy Company, and its driver, Fred J. Gerdes of 2755 E.

Temple O. Merchant of 3015 No. Cotner seeks $28,000 in damages for injuries and property damage in his suit and his wife N. Louise Merchant, asks $15,000 for injuries.

Suit arises out of a car-truck collision on May 29, 1953, on Highway 41 about five miles west of Adams.

Gerdes is the alleged driver of the Roberts' truck. Mrs. Merchant was a passenger in the car driven by her husband.

Mental Health Group Begins Study

By ARCH DONOVAN
Star Staff Writer

First meeting of the newly appointed committee on mental health was held Tuesday with Gov. Robert Crosby, who discussed with them the problems he has encountered and gave them a free hand in making a study of the mental health situation in the state.

He requested that they do two things: (1) make a survey on the present status of mental health facilities in accord with a request of the Council of State Governments and (2) make recommendations they find advisable to the next session of the Legislature.

"We are entering a new era of state responsibility on mental health," the governor told the committee. "Education has made it a disease no longer concealed, but one for which prompt treatment often results in cures."

Psychiatrist Shortage

Because of public education and public acceptance of treatment, he said private practice has become accepted and lucrative with the result that it is becoming harder and harder to recruit sufficient psychiatrists for public hospitals.

The nationwide shortage of doctors specialized in this field, Crosby said, caused the Council of State Governments to seek co-operation between states to pool research and educational facilities. A meeting of midwest states is planned in October for this purpose.

The governor said that Nebraska is "way ahead of all states" through the foresight of the board of control and University of Nebraska medical college in co-operating to establish the psychiatric unit in Omaha.

training for all classes of workers in the mental health field and should soon help to relieve the shortage of employees in the state hospitals.

It was pointed out by the governor and members of the board that salaries are not the sole problem in recruiting professional staff at the hospitals. Psychiatrists entering the institution field they explained are chiefly interested in research and education.

Increased Prestige

This professional prestige will be increased in the state through their use on the faculty of the psychiatric unit.

More than 80 per cent of the employees in the hospitals received wage increases last year, the governor told the committee.

Proceedings Over Steam Plant Taken

COLUMBUS, Neb. (AP)—Motions and demurrers were taken from the defendants in District Court here Tuesday in a suit brought by the Custer County Public Power District to stop the Loup River Public Power District from issuing bonds for a steam generating plant.

District Judge H. Emerson Kojer of Wahoo presided.

The Loup District plans to build a steam plant near Beatrice and issued $17,600,000 in bonds to do it.

The Custer District attacked the validity of the bonds chiefly on two points:

1. Contention that the 4.06 per cent rate at which the bonds were sold is in excess of the 4 per cent interest rate fixed in the notice of sale.

2. That the budget board, an organization of representatives of customers of the Loup District whose approval was necessary, had failed to approve the transaction at a meeting last March 30.

The Loup District and other defendants asked a declaratory judgment holding valid the series D bonds it issued to finance the plant.

Loup contended the interest rate is 4 per cent and therefore legal, and that the .06 per cent is a discount at which the bonds were being sold and not part of the interest rate.

Loup maintained the budget board approved the sale after being so instructed by a vote of the representatives of Loup wholesale customers held in Lincoln March 19, 1954.

The Custer District and other plaintiffs seek to have court clarification of the rights of public power district customers and others involved in the current steam generating plant dispute between the Consumers Public Power District and the Nebraska Public Power System.

Negrey Is Turned Over To Karnopp Pilots' Union

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP)—Michael Negrey, 36-year-old jail escape artist, was turned over to Sheriff Merle C. Karnopp of Lancaster County, Neb., Tuesday to complete a nine-year burglary term. Nebraska had asked his extradition.

Negrey, who just completed a seven-year term here for safe cracking, had built up a reputation as an escape artist both in Canada and the United States.

On April 9, 1947, Negrey, awaiting transportation to the penitentiary to begin a seven-year term, escaped from the Brandon, Manitoba, jail. He made his way to the United States and was arrested in September, 1947, at Omaha, Neb., on a charge of burglary.

He was sentenced to nine years but escaped from the Nebraska Penitentiary July 5, 1949. On Aug. 13, 1949, he was arrested at Fort William, Ont., and returned to Winnipeg.

The State Railway Commission Tuesday announced approval of a request of the K.B.R. Rural Public Power District, Ainsworth, to reconstruct 197 miles of electric line and build 14 new miles of line. Work will be in Keya Paha, Rock, Brown, Cherry, Holt and Loup counties.

Susan's Husband Starts Action To Prevent Divorce

HOLLYWOOD (INS)—Actor Jess Barker launched a new legal offensive Tuesday to prevent his screen star wife, Susan Hayward, from divorcing him.

The slim, handsome actor filed a petition asking Superior Court to deny his red-haired wife a divorce on grounds of recrimination.

Barker's attorney, S. S. Hahn, veteran Hollywood divorce lawyer, explained that this means Susan allegedly provoked Barker into tossing her into their swimming pool and that Barker's other actions cited in her divorce suit were similarly counter-balanced by unwelcome behavior on her part.

in explaining how wages are fixed by the hospital superintendents. He said the last Legislature increased the budget 10 per cent for this purpose.

Members of the committee pointed out that senility is a growing problem of the hospitals and they were urged to give it careful consideration.

The committee decided to work as a team and without a chairman. They will meet with the board of control on Aug. 28 before starting their visits to the three hospitals.

Airline Sues Pilots' Union

NEW YORK (AP)—American Airlines said Tuesday it has filed a 1 1/4 million dollar breach of contract suit against the striking AFL Airline Pilots Assn.

The federal court suit asks a million dollars damages for the four-day strike of pilots and an added quarter of a million for the union's influence on striking pilots.

Named as defendants were Clarence Sayen, president of the union; J. J. O'Connell, chairman of its American Airlines Division, and C. H. Dault, New York chairman of the union.

American, the nation's largest domestic air carrier, was struck at midnight Friday by its 1,200 pilots. Its 970 daily flights normally cover routes totalling 12,000 miles. It handles about 20,000 passengers a day.

The Pilots Assn. demanded an end to transcontinental flights that require a pilot on duty more than eight hours at a stretch.

American's president, C. R. Smith, announced the court suit and told reporters the company's contract with the union "clearly permits" the westbound non-stop flights.

The Civil Aeronautics Board last June relaxed its limit on non-stop flights above eight hours and permitted runs up to 10 hours.

U.S. Anthem At End Of Voice Broadcasts Scares Audience

TOKYO (Wednesday) (INS)—Recent arrivals from Communist controlled Shanghai said in Tokyo Tuesday that the Voice of America is making a "big and dangerous mistake" by playing the U. S. National Anthem at the close of propaganda broadcasts to Red China.

The men, who asked that their names not be disclosed, said they still have relatives behind the Bamboo Curtain.

They said the broadcast usually comes in poorly but that at the end the American Anthem comes in so loud and clear it "nearly frightens us to death before we can shut it off."

Fear Neighbors
They said a listener's fear is that his neighbors, some of whom are usually strong supporters of the Red regime, will hear it and report him.

Sometimes, they said, even his own children in the next room will hear the prohibited Anthem and report their father the next day when they go to school. This will earn them a nice, new red star to pin to their uniform, they said.

Difficult Life
The refugees from Communist China said life in Shanghai is "getting more difficult every day." They insisted the Chinese people now "know just what Communism is but there is nothing we can do about it."

Asked about the possibility of the Chinese supporting an assault against the Reds by the Nationalist forces of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, the Chinese group replied:

"As long as Chiang and his aides remain at the head of the present government on Formosa, the people on the mainland will lack enthusiasm for either the Reds or the Nationalists."

Pamphlet Printed To Guide Jurists
Nebraskans called for jury service for the first time will soon be getting the help of a pamphlet to guide them in the why's and wherefore's of their assignment.

Twenty thousand copies of a manual prepared by the Nebraska State Bar Association have been printed and are being sent to District Court clerks over the state.

The booklet will be given to persons called for jury duty. It lists the District Courts in Nebraska, discusses various aspects of jury duty and sketches duties of the judge and lawyers.

"No service that you can render your country, outside of service in the armed forces, is more important than the duties upon which you are about to enter," the manual counsels prospective jurors. "As jurors you will be exercising part of the sovereign power of government."

The manual was prepared by the bar association's committee on public service.

Bridal News Along Courtesy Row Honor August Brides-Elect

There are busy days ahead for those who are to be married in August and September, judging from the numerous courtesies we learned about after consulting our bride's book.

A September bride-elect, Miss Rosemary Lucke, whose marriage to Robert Rhodes will be solemnized on September 5 at 6 o'clock in the evening at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, is this morning announcing the members of her bridal party.

For her matron of honor, Miss Lucke has chosen Mrs. Wesley Hultquist and her bridesmatron will be her sister, Mrs. Robert Jeambey. The bridesmaids will be Miss Frances Lucke, sister of the bride-to-be, Miss Juanette Oestmann of Auburn and Miss Beverly Nelson of Sidney. Miss Sallie Butler and Mrs. Marvin McIntosh will light the candles.

Robert Jeambey will be the best man and the ushers will be Thomas Waring and William Benney, both of Stanton. Donald Hull of Gordon and Lee Morgan.

Miss Carole Pietenpol, who will become the bride of Doyle Blodgett at 3 o'clock, Sunday, Aug. 29, at Trinity Methodist Church has chosen her sister, Miss Janice Pietenpol as her

ONE OF the unbeatable combinations is a balmy summer morning—and plenty of news—and what news! Wish we could tell you—or even give you a clue to an exceedingly exciting tidbit—but we promised that we'd wait for another few weeks—and that's that.

But that by no means ends the interest in the ayem's collection of chatter—There is news of the Roscoe Hills, for instance—a word or two about John Baylor and his summer stay in Europe—We have some guests to talk about, and of course no morning during the current season would be complete without its travelers and homecomers—

NOW about the Roscoe Hills—Mr. and Mrs.—They played off early this morning for New York City from where they will sail for Europe—First there is a meeting of turkey growers in Scotland, and after that Mr. and Mrs. Hill will travel through the British Isles and on the continent. One of the high spots will be their stay in Madrid, Spain, where they are to be guests at the home of an exchange student from Madrid who spent the past year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hill.

AND while on the subject of Europe we may as well come forth with the news from John Baylor—Mr. Baylor, who is in Europe this summer in the interests of the American Field Service, attended a meeting of the International Bar Association at Monte Carlo, and simply was entranced with the city which he terms "fabulous." In between the Bar Association tion meeting and the American Field Service convention now in session in Switzerland, Mr. Baylor spent a few days in Berlin—even went behind the Iron Curtain and was vastly disappointed because his excursion was so uneventful—no one accused him of spying—no one shot at him or dragged him to jail.

SATURDAY, so we hear, is the day that Lt. (jg) John J. Fuller, who is aboard the USS James E. Kyes, docks at Long Beach Harbor—and on hand to meet him will be Mrs. Fuller, the former Janet Frerichs, who already has sped away to California. At the moment the promise of land duty for the young naval officer seems very bright—and unless orders are changed the Fullers will remain on the west coast.

BUT although Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Frerichs are minus a daughter, they do have a cheering note in the way of a house guest—Miss Aina Frerichs of Grant's Pass, Ore., has arrived to spend several days as the guest of her brother and sister-in-law.

AND apropos of guests—Just learned that Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holbert have a guest sixsome—Mr. Holbert's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley R. Harris and their four children, Bill, Mary, Margaret and Martha, who arrived Monday evening from Morgantown, W. Va., for a two weeks stay. Mr. Harris, so someone told us, is the registrar at the University of West Virginia. Another guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Holbert is Mrs. Holbert's niece, Miss Sharon Richardson of Akron, O.

HEARD too, that Mrs. Darrell Gunn of Shawnee Mission, Kans., is the house guest of her cousin, Mrs. H. H. Cather and Mr. Cather, and also is visiting her mother, Mrs. John Taylor who, at the moment, is hospitalized.

JUST discovered that Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Mapson of Los Angeles, Calif., who spent a few days with Mrs. Mapson's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wilson, en route from New York to the west coast, left on Tuesday to return to their home.

ANOTHER guest who has returned to her home is Mrs. Donald Freed of Loomis, who spent the past week as the house guest of her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. H. Glenn

Service At First Presbyterian

Lighted white cathedral candles and cascade arrangements of woodwardia and pink gladioli formed the chancel decor at First Presbyterian Church for the marriage of Miss Marlene Rees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Rees of Waverly, and Theodore J. Forke, son of Mrs. Albert H. Forke and the late Mr. Forke, on Tuesday evening, August 3. Tall lighted candles circled with smilax were also used to mark the pews of the processional aisle.

The 8 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. John R. Wasser, and Miss Grace Finch, organist, played the wedding music. Miss Finch also presented a prelude of organ music and accompanied Mrs. Robert Chab as she sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Costumed identically in pale pink silk organza were the maid of honor, Miss Nancy Hegstrom of Waverly, and the bridesmaids, Miss Ruth Kleinert, Lincoln and Miss Kay Barton of Grand Island. Narrow pleats of the organza framed the V necklines of their cap-sleeved bodices, and their skirts flared into waltz length. Contour caps of frock-toned organza completed their ensembles, and they carried bouquets of pink feathered carnations. Miss Katherine Osborn of Longmont, Colo., wearing pink nylon sheer, was the flower girl.

Blush pink satin touched with Alencon lace, fashioned the bride's period gown. The Empire bodice of lace over satin was designed with a rounded portrait neckline and brief sleeves, and the floral motif of the lace was patterned with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Beneath the snug waist, the skirt was caught into wide pleats and extended into a train, and her tiered veil of

MISS SANDRA GADD

OF particular interest to campus and town circles this morning is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gadd of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Sandra, to Jack Keene, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Keene.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, Sept. 11, and the ceremony will be solemnized at the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

Miss Gadd is a senior at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Alpha Phi sorority, and of Sigma Eta Chi. Mr. Keene, also a senior at the University of Nebraska, has served as company commander of Pershing Rifles for the past two years.

Bridal News Along Courtesy Row Honor August Brides-Elect

There are busy days ahead for those who are to be married in August and September, judging from the numerous courtesies we learned about after consulting our bride's book.

A September bride-elect, Miss Rosemary Lucke, whose marriage to Robert Rhodes will be solemnized on September 5 at 6 o'clock in the evening at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, is this morning announcing the members of her bridal party.

For her matron of honor, Miss Lucke has chosen Mrs. Wesley Hultquist and her bridesmatron will be her sister, Mrs. Robert Jeamby. The bridesmaids will be Miss Frances Lucke, sister of the bride-to-be, Miss Juanae Oestmann of Auburn and Miss Beverly Nelson of Sidney. Miss Sallie Butler and Mrs. Marvin McIntosh will light the candles.

Robert Jeamby will be the best man and the ushers will be Thomas Waring and William Benney, both of Stanton. Donald Hull of Gordon and Lee Morgan.

Miss Carole Pietenpol, who will become the bride of Doyle Blodgett at 3 o'clock, Sunday, Aug. 29, at Trinity Methodist Church has chosen her sister, Miss Janice Pietenpol as her

ONE OF the unbeatable combinations is a balmy summer morning—and plenty of news—and what news! Wish we could tell you—or even give you a clue to an exceedingly exciting tidbit—but we promised that we'd wait for another few weeks—and that's that.

But that by no means ends the interest in the avens' collection of chatter—There is news of the Roscoe Hills, for instance—a word or two about John Baylor and his summer stay in Europe—We have some guests to talk about, and of course no morning during the current season would be complete without its travelers and homecomers—

NOW about the Roscoe Hills—Mr. and Mrs.—They played off early this morning for New York City from where they will sail for Europe—First there is a meeting of turkey growers in Scotland, and after that Mr. and Mrs. Hill will travel through the British Isles and on the continent. One of the high spots will be their stay in Madrid, Spain, where they are to be guests at the home of an exchange student from Madrid who spent the past year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hill.

AND while on the subject of Europe we may as well come forth with the news from John Baylor — Mr. Baylor, who is in Europe this summer in the interests of the American Field Service, attended a meeting of the International Bar Association at Monte Carlo, and simply was entranced with the city which he terms "fabulous." In between the Bar Association meeting and the American Field Service convention now in session in Switzerland, Mr. Baylor spent a few days in Berlin—even went behind the Iron Curtain and was vastly disappointed because his excursion was so uneventful—no one accused him of spying—no one shot at him or dragged him to jail.

SATURDAY, so we hear, is the day that Lt. (jg) John J. Fuller, who is aboard the USS James E. Kyes, docks at Long Beach Harbor—and on hand to meet him will be Mrs. Fuller, the former Janet Frerichs, who already has sped away to California. At the moment the promise of land duty for the young naval officer seems very bright—and unless orders are changed the Fullers will remain on the west coast.

BUT although Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Frerichs are minus a daughter, they do have a cheering note in the way of a house guest — Miss Alma Frerichs of Grant's Pass, Ore., has arrived to spend several days as the guest of her brother and sister-in-law.

AND apropos of guests — Just learned that Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holbert have a guest sixsome—Mr. Holbert's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley R. Harris and their four children, Bill, Mary, Margaret and Martha, who arrived Monday evening from Morgantown, W. Va., for a two weeks stay. Mr. Harris, so someone told us, is the registrar at the University of West Virginia. Another guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Holbert is Mrs. Holbert's niece, Miss Sharon Richardson of Akron, O.

HEARD too, that Mrs. Darrell Gunn of Shawnee Mission, Kans., is the house guest of her cousin, Mrs. H. H. Cather and Mr. Cather, and also is visiting her mother, Mrs. John Taylor who, at the moment, is hospitalized.

JUST discovered that Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Mapson of Los Angeles, Calif., who spent a few days with Mrs. Mapson's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wilson, en route from New York to the west coast, left on Tuesday to return to their home.

ANOTHER guest who has returned to her home is Mrs. Donald Freed of Loomis, who spent the past week as the house guest of her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. H. Glenn Callen. Other news concerning the Callens involves plans for a trip to Winnipeg, Canada, and the tentative starting date is Aug. 14.

OUR travelogue includes mention of Montauk, Long Island, N. Y., where Mrs. Albert Speier is visiting her son, Paul—and where both were joined at the week-end by Mrs. Joseph Silverman and her two children, Jan and Ricky, who plan east for a two weeks stay.

THEN there is the news that Mrs. R. A. Phillips will leave next week for Colorado, and who will arrive in time to greet her daughter, Barbara, who will have concluded her stay at Cheley Camp. After a week's holiday in the mountains Mrs. Phillips and her daughter will return to Lincoln.

OFF to Ten Mile Lake, Minn., next Tuesday will go Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Barney and their son, Bob, who plan to spend the remainder of August on a holiday.

BUT, as we said before—some of the populace already has completed the summer holiday and are home—or expected home—soon.

Thursday, so someone told us, will bring Mr. and Mrs. William I. Aitken, their daughter, Miss Nancy Aitken—and their niece, Miss Jean Aitken—home from California—all sections of it.

ALREADY back in town are Mr. and Mrs. E. Sheldon Hallett who returned Monday after a long week-end spent at Cass Lake, Minn., where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Groth at their summer home. Incidentally Mr. Groth, who seems to be commuting between Lincoln and Cass Lake this summer, made the round trip with Mr. and Mrs. Hallett.

TIME now to extend greetings to Miss Christie Granger Shaw who arrived on Tuesday, Aug. 3, at Lincoln General hospital. The small Miss Shaw is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Shaw.

Service At First Presbyterian

Lighted white cathedral candles and cascade arrangements of woodwardia and pink gladioli formed the chancel decor at First Presbyterian Church for the marriage of Miss Marlene Rees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Rees of Waverly, and Theodore J. Forke, son of Mrs. Albert H. Forke and the late Mr. Forke, on Tuesday evening, August 3. Tall lighted candles circled with smilax were also used to mark the pews of the processional aisle.

The 8 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. John R. Wasser, and Miss Grace Finch, organist, played the wedding music. Miss Finch also presented a prelude of organ music and accompanied Mrs. Robert Chab as she sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Costumed identically in pale pink silk organza were the maid of honor, Miss Nancy Hegstrom of Waverly, and the bridesmaids, Miss Ruth Kleintert, Lincoln and Miss Kay Barton of Grand Island. Narrow pleats of the organza framed the V necklines of their cap-sleeved bodices, and their skirts flared into waltz length. Contour caps of frock-toned organza completed their ensembles, and they carried bouquets of pink feathered carnations. Miss Katherine Osborn of Longmont, Colo., wearing pink nylon sheer, was the flower girl.

Blush pink satin touched with Alencon lace fashioned the bride's period gown. The Empire bodice of lace over satin was designed with a rounded portrait neckline and brief sleeves, and the floral motif of the lace was patterned with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Beneath the snug waist, the skirt was caught into wide pleats and extended into a train, and her tiered veil of pink illusion was held by a cap of the illusion trimmed with sequins. She carried a modern bouquet of Rubrum lilies and stephanotis.

Serving his brother as best man was Donald Forke, and seating the guests were William Rees of Waverly, brother of the bride, Dudley Saille, David Weber and Richard Wells. A reception was held in the church parlors immediately following the ceremony, after which the couple left for a short wedding trip. Mr. and Mrs. Forke will reside in Columbus, Ga., where the bridegroom is serving with the Army at Fort Benning.

A July graduate of the University of Nebraska, the bride is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority. Mr. Forke is a former student at the University of Nebraska.

MISS SANDRA GADD

OF particular interest to campus and town circles this morning is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gadd of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Sandra, to Jack Keene, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Keene.

The wedding will take place on Saturday, Sept. 11, and the ceremony will be solemnized at the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

Miss Gadd is a senior at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Alpha Phi sorority, and of Sigma Eta Chi. Mr. Keene, also a senior at the University of Nebraska, has served as company commander of Pershing Rifles for the past two years.

Council Has Smooth Sailing On Budget

Requests Of Three Departments Decreased In Night Session

By BILL DOBLER
Star Staff Writer

It was comparatively smooth sailing Monday night for the City Council at its second 1954-55 budget session as it reviewed five departmental requests for the new year — three of them with requests down from last year and two with increases.

Requests were decreased in the clerk and auditor departments from a total last year of $22,680 to a combined total for the new year of $22,042. Also down was the purchasing department request, going from $14,096 for 1953-54 to $11,942 for 1954-55.

The discussions did, however, bring up one old subject—a car pool. The partial car pool attempted during the past year was unsuccessful with the three cars and four individuals involved.

Tax Commissioner William A. Schlaebitz requested that the Council appropriate $242.55 for payment to him as reimbursement for putting 3.465 miles on his own car doing city business during the past year after the car pool collapsed. He also asked that $600 be appropriated for mileage payments to him during the coming year.

No final Council action was taken on this or any other part of the budget but Mayor Clark Jeary stated he was hopeful of setting up a complete car pool of all city automobiles, possible in the new year's budget. This would require construction of a garage or the renting of facilities where all vehicles could be housed.

Requests from the treasurer's department are up for the new year from $50,642 in 1953-54 to $58,410. Major items accounting for the increase are a $2,485 appropriation required for bi-annual bond and insurance premiums and nearly a $5,000 increase in capital outlay for equipment.

The capital outlay request, totaling $8,175 for the new year, included $825 for a new calculating machine, $2,000 for the repair of tax records, $1,000 for air conditioning and $3,500 for a new bookkeeping machine.

Also up with requests for the new year is the tax commissioner's office. Requests for the new year in that department total $14,130 as compared to $10,845 for 1953-54.

More than $2,000 of this increase is in operation and maintenance. It was noted, however, that $1,800 could be taken off the request if notices to owners of real estate are not required on valuations for the year 1955.

County Board Sets Budgets

The Lancaster County Commissioners, following a budget hearing Tuesday, have taken the following tentative actions:

On Westview Nursing Home, request reduced by $840 to $29,065.

On Buildings and Grounds, no change in the $24,555 request.

On County Superintendent no change in the $22,550 request.

On County Relief, request reduced by $5,780 to $162,772.

On County Board of Commissioners, request reduced by $100 to $10,580.

First Lutheran Buys Parsonage

First Lutheran Church, 17th and A, has purchased a new parsonage at 2740 Woodside. The Rev. J. Sabin Svenson, pastor, will move his family into the home this week.

The parsonage approved the purchase at a special meeting on July 18. The committee which selected the home was Carl W. Olson, Emmet Kennedy, Adolph Westberg and Charles Widger.

Blaze Damages Tarps, Lime Sacks

A cigarette-caused fire damaged tarps and lime sacks of the George Cook Construction Company at the Bethany School at 1526 No. Colner Tuesday afternoon.

Firemen extinguished the fire which had started around the new addition under construction adjacent to the school. Damage was estimated by fire officials at $75.

Liquor Income Less

Revenue of the State Liquor Commission in July was $208,90 as compared with $224,812 in July last year. Spirituous liquor taxes dropped from $117,42 to $93,178 and beer from $92,601 to $92,458. June receipts were $246,710. Total revenue for the first seven months this year was $1,681,392 as compared with $1,676,103 in the same period last year.

Two Candidates Discuss Comic Books

Comic Book Question Only One Stumping Candidates

By ALLEN EDEE
Star Staff Writer

The only issue that stumped the 14 non-partisan candidates that faced a question and answer period at the YWCA Tuesday night was the threat of comic books on the minds of children.

J. S. Nelson of 4333 So. 48th posed the question to the panel of candidates on how to get rid of "comic book trash."

Charles Sutherland, candidate for the 20th legislative district, agreed that it was a problem.

But Robert Perry, another candidate for the 20th district post, said after reading his children's comic books "I discovered comic books are just as good literature as a lot of good books."

The candidates for the state Board of Education, the Unicameral Legislature and the Board of Regents of the University of Nebraska pleaded their cause in a five minute period before an audience of more than 100 persons.

The candidates and their views:

Tom Adams, candidate for the 19th legislative post: The two big problems facing the legislature are taxation and a big highway that may cross the country.

Leo Bartunek, candidate for the same post: I will not attempt to further my pet projects in the legislature. I am acting in the capacity of a representative only.

Otto H. Liebers, candidate for the 19th legislative post: I look for the next legislative session to be the toughest in a number of years. Taxes are the number one problem.

Robert Perry, candidate for the 20th legislative post: I am not in favor of any sales or income tax unless they are a complete substitute tax and the people in my district want it.

Mrs. Ada Schafer, candidate for the same post: I want to stand up and be counted against the sales and income tax.

Mrs. Bertha Smith, candidate for the same post: I'm not at all sure we have to have a sales tax. There is a power tax, severance tax on oil, transaction tax and Iowa has an $8,000,000 liquor monopoly if we want to broaden the tax base. I would like to see a new juvenile court bill.

Charles Sutherland, candidate for the same post: I am in favor of a 100-member unicameral legislature with Lancaster County having five representatives. I am not in favor of selling school lands. A new tax base could be electric power.

Cole Venner, candidate for the same post: I think the educational system needs a revision. I don't have any set program.

Edward Witte, candidate for the 19th legislative post: I want to help revise some codes and tear apart those 60-year-old codes.

Mrs. A. F. Hanneman, candidate for the state Board of Education: The board should have one woman and a mother on the board. The problems of education are the most important we have to settle.

George Spidel, candidate for the same board: The primary issue is the qualification of the candidates. I have been for 27 years a superintendent, teacher, and coach, and also a member of the state board of equalization and school board.

Harry Cunningham, candidate for the board of regents: Since 1913, the board of regents has never had an academic man. I have been professor at the University from 1930-34.

Clarence Swanson, candidate for the same board: We are paying teachers a par with other schools around us. Handling $14,000,000 is big business for the regents.

Rev. Brueggeman, Milwaukee, Dies

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The Rev. Hubert G. Brueggemann, 43, pastor of Mount Oliver Lutheran Church, died after an illness of eight months.

A summer speaker on the International Lutheran Radio Hour in 1951 and 1952, he had rejected offers, prior to his illness, to be pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Rockford, Ill., and president of Concordia Teachers College and High School at Seward, Neb., one of the major institutions of the Lutheran Church—Missouri synod.

$75,000 Injury Suit Filed By Woman

A $75,000 personal injury suit by Ellen Baker of Grand Island has been filed in Lancaster District Court.

Defendants named are Helen E. Johnson of 1521 LeGros, Abraham Franck of Minneapolis, Minn., and Engineering Research Association, division of Remington-Rand, Inc.

Plaintiff alleges she was "a passenger" in a car driven by Helen Johnson, which was in a collision with a car driven by Franck, an employee of the defendant company, on U.S. Highway 77 south of Lincoln on Sept. 25, 1953.

Damages sought by plaintiff are for injuries, loss of wages, and medical expenses.

Woodlawn School Equipment Taken

Woodlawn School (District 102) has reported intruders took some and left some when they broke into the school house.

The Lancaster County Sheriff's office was told that all the school's phonograph records, a ping pong set and a first aid kit was missing.

But left by the door, apparently when the intruders were frightened away, were the school's sports equipment and dishes.

Entrance was gained by breaking a basement window and forcing the lock on the door leading upstairs. Two other locks were reported broken, including one into the furnace room where equipment was stored.

Injury Suit Filed In Federal Court

A $50,000 injury suit for Beverly Bukacek, a minor, and brought by her mother, Mrs. Effie Bukacek of Wichita, Kan., has been filed in Federal Court here.

Defendants are Frank Votipka and Rex Votipka, Fillmore County residents.

Suit arises out of a two-car collision on Oct. 19, 1953, at a county highway intersection about 10 miles southeast of Geneva.

Damages asked by plaintiff are for alleged injuries and disfigurement suffered in the accident as a passenger in an auto which was in collision with the defendants' vehicle.

80 At Railroad Shops Laid Off

Eighty employees have been laid off at the Havelock Shops of the Burlington Railroad.

B. H. Barrett, shop superintendent, said the layoff was due to "lack of business." He said it was "hard to tell" how long it would last.

There are about 650 employees at the shops. The layoff covered the entire shops and was not confined to a certain group of workers, Barrett said.

The superintendent said the layoff was a local problem and did not reflect a general loss of business throughout the Burlington system.

Judge Jacobson: Driver Education Short Course Is 'Fine And Important'

Municipal Judge John Jacobson told the 38 high school teachers enrolled in the University of Nebraska short course in driver education that such a training program is "fine and important in the field of traffic education."

He spoke at the Tuesday afternoon session. The short course continues through Friday noon.

Judge Jacobson added, "A continued and expanded program should eventually result in greater awareness among drivers and eventually decrease substantially the number of accidents caused by carelessness."

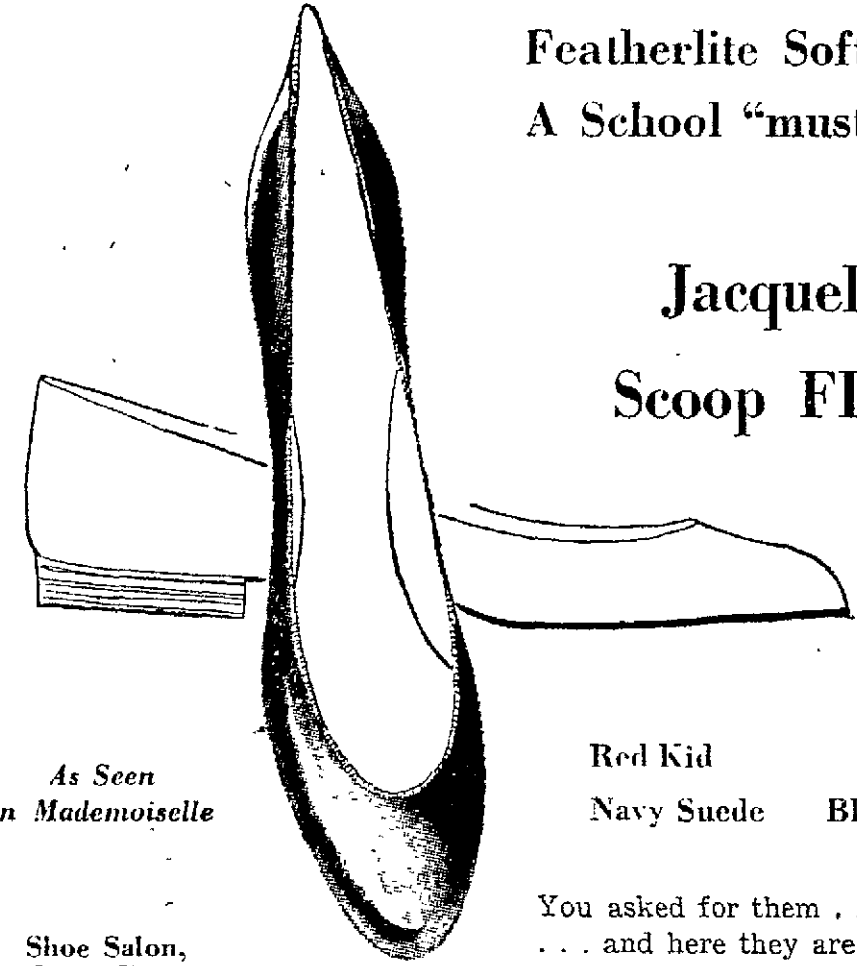

Later Tuesday afternoon, the teachers of high school driver education got some driving practice themselves in practice teaching units. The evening session was devoted to a program of traffic films.

Wednesday, Dr. Ralph C. Moore of Omaha and Charles Marsh of Valley will show their colored photographs of traffic accidents and victims taken during the past two years on the Omaha-Valley road. A discussion of traffic accidents and their causes will follow.

Speakers Thursday will include State Highway Engineer L. N. Ress, Inspector Paul Shively of the Lincoln Police Department, and Capt. O. H. Witt of the Nebraska Safety Patrol.

Dr. Milton Beckmann, assistant professor of secondary education, is supervising the short course.

Council Has Smooth Sailing On Budget

Requests Of Three Departments Decreased In Night Session

By BILL DOBLER
Star Staff Writer

It was comparatively smooth sailing Monday night for the City Council at its second 1954-55 budget session as it reviewed five departmental requests for the new year — three of them with requests down from last year and two with increases.

Requests were decreased in the clerk and auditor departments from a total last year of $22,680 to a combined total for the new year of $22,042. Also down was the purchasing department request, going from $14,096 for 1953-54 to $11,942 for 1954-55.

The discussions did, however, bring up one old subject—a car pool. The partial car pool attempted during the past year was unsuccessful with the three cars and four individuals involved.

Tax Commissioner William A. Schaeblitz requested that the Council appropriate $242.55 for payment to him as reimbursement for putting 3,465 miles on his own car doing city business during the past year after the car pool collapsed. He also asked that $600 be appropriated for mileage payments to him during the coming year.

County Board Sets Budgets

The Lancaster County Commissioners, following budget hearings Tuesday, have taken the following tentative actions:

On Westview Nursing Home, request reduced by $840 to $29,065.

On Buildings and Grounds, no change in the $24,555 request.

On County Superintendent no change in the $22,550 request.

On County Relief, request reduced by $5,780 to $162,772.

On County Board of Commissioners, request reduced by $100 to $10,580.

First Lutheran Buys Parsonage

First Lutheran Church, 17th and A, has purchased a new parsonage at 2740 Wooddale. The Rev. J. Sabin Swenson, pastor, will move his family into the home this week.

The parsonage approved the purchase at a special meeting on July 18. The committee, which selected the home was Carl W. Olson, Emmet Kennedy, Adolph Westerberg and Charles Widger.

Blaze Damages Tarps, Lime Sacks

A cigarette-caused fire damaged tarps and lime sacks of the George Cook Construction Company at the Bethany School at 1526 No. Cotner Tuesday afternoon.

Firemen extinguished the fire which had started around the new addition under construction adjacent to the school. Damage was estimated by fire officials at $75.

Liquor Income Less

Revenue of the State Liquor Commission in July was $208,790 as compared with $224,812 in July last year. Spirituous liquor taxes dropped from $117,742 to $93,178 and beer from $92,601 to $92,445. June receipts were $246,710. Total revenue for the first seven months this year was $1,681,392 as compared with $1,676,103 in the same period last year.

Two Candidates Discuss Comic Books

Comic Book Question Only One Stumping Candidates

By ALLEN EDEE
Star Staff Writer

The only issue that stumped the 14 non-partisan candidates that faced a question and answer period at the YWCA Tuesday night was the threat of comic books on the minds of children.

J. S. Nelson of 4333 So. 48th posed the question to the panel of candidates on how to get rid of "comic book trash."

Charles Sutherland, candidate for the 20th legislative district, agreed that it was a problem. But Robert Perry, another candidate for the 20th district post, said after reading his children's comic books "I discovered comic books are just as good literature as a lot of bound books."

The candidates for the state Board of Education, the Unicameral Legislature and the Board of Regents of the University of Nebraska pleaded their cause in a five minute period before an audience of more than 100 persons.

The candidates and their views:

Tom Adams, candidate for the 19th legislative post: The two big problems facing the legislature are taxation and a big highway that may cross the country.

Leo Bartunek, candidate for the same post: I will not attempt to further my pet projects in the legislature. I am acting in the capacity of a representative only.

Otto H. Liebers, candidate for the 18th legislative post: I look for the next legislative session to be the toughest in a number of years. Taxes are the number one problem.

Robert Perry, candidate for the 20th legislative post: I am not in favor of any sales or income tax unless they are a complete substitute tax and the people in my district want it.

Mrs. Ada Schafer, candidate for the same post: I want to stand up and be counted against the sales and income tax.

Mrs. Bertha Smith, candidate for the same post: I'm not at all sure we have to have a sales tax. There is a power tax, severance tax on oil, transaction tax and Iowa has an $8,000,000 liquor monopoly if we want to broaden the tax base. I would like to see a new juvenile court bill.

Charles Sutherland, candidate for the same post: I am in favor of a 100-member unicameral legislature with Lancaster County having five representatives. I am not in favor of selling school lands. A new tax base could be electric power.

Cobe Venner, candidate for the same post: I think the educational system needs a revision. I don't have any set program.

Edward Witte, candidate for the 19th legislative post: I want to help revise some codes and tear apart those 60-year-old codes.

Mrs. A. F. Hanneman, candidate for the state Board of Education: The board should have one woman and a mother on the board. The problems of education are the most important we have to settle.

George Spidel, candidate for the same board: The primary issue is the qualification of the candidates. I have been for 27 years a superintendent, teacher, and coach, and also a member of the state board of equalization and school board.

Harry Cunningham, candidate for the board of regents: Since 1913, the board of regents has never had an academic man. I have been professor at the University from 1930-34.

Clarence Swanson, candidate for the same board: We are paying teachers on a par with other schools around us. Handling $14,000,000 is big business for the regents.

Rev. Brueggeman, Milwaukee, Dies

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The Rev. Hubert G. Brueggemann, 43, pastor of Mount Oliver Lutheran Church, died after an illness of eight months.

A summer speaker on the International Lutheran Radio Hour in 1951 and 1952, he had rejected offers, prior to his illness, to be pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Rockford, Ill., and president of Concordia Teachers College and High School at Seward, Neb., one of the major institutions of the Lutheran Church—Missouri synod.

$75,000 Injury Suit Filed By Woman

A $75,000 personal injury suit by Ellen Baker of Grand Island has been filed in Lancaster District Court.

Defendants named are Helen E. Johnson of 1521 LeGros, Abraham Franck of Minneapolis, Minn., and Engineering Research Association, division of Remington-Rand, Inc.

Plaintiff alleges she was "a passenger" in a car driven by Helen Johnson, which was in a collision with a car driven by Franck, an employee of the defendant company, on U.S. Highway 77 south of Lincoln on Sept. 25, 1953.

Damages sought by plaintiff are for injuries, loss of wages, and medical expenses.

Woodlawn School Equipment Taken

Woodlawn School (District 102) has reported intruders took some and left some when they broke into the school house.

The Lancaster County Sheriff's office was told that all the school's phonograph records, a ping pong set and a first aid kit was missing.

But left by the door, apparently when the intruders were frightened away, were the school's sports equipment and dishes.

Entrance was gained by breaking a basement window and forcing the lock on the door leading upstairs. Two other locks were reported broken, including one into the furnace room where equipment was stored.

Injury Suit Filed In Federal Court

A $50,000 injury suit for Beverly Bukacek, a minor, and brought by her mother, Mrs. Effie Bukacek of Wichita, Kan., has been filed in Federal Court here.

Defendants are Frank Votipka and Rex Votipka, Fillmore County residents.

Suit arises out of a two-car collision on Oct. 19, 1953, at a county highway intersection about 10 miles southeast of Geneva.

Damages asked by plaintiff are for alleged injuries and disfigurement suffered in the accident as a passenger in an auto which was in collision with the defendants' vehicle.

80 At Railroad Shops Laid Off

Eighty employees have been laid off at the Havelock Shops of the Burlington Railroad.

B. H. Barrett, shop superintendent, said the layoff was due to "lack of business." He said it was "hard to tell" how long it would last.

There are about 650 employees at the shops. The layoff covered the entire shops and was not confined to a certain group of workers, Barrett said.

The superintendent said the layoff was a local problem and did not reflect a general loss of business throughout the Burlington system.

Judge Jacobson: Driver Education Short Course Is 'Fine And Important'

Municipal Judge John Jacobson told the 38 high school teachers enrolled in the University of Nebraska short course in driver education that such a training program is "fine and important in the field of traffic education."

He spoke at the Tuesday afternoon session. The short course continues through Friday noon.

Judge Jacobson added, "A continued and expanded program should eventually result in greater awareness among drivers and eventually decrease substantially the number of accidents caused by carelessness."

Later Tuesday afternoon, the teachers of high school driver education got some driving practice themselves in practice teaching units. The evening session was devoted to a program of traffic films.

Wednesday, Dr. Ralph C. Moore of Omaha and Charles Marsh of Valley will show their colored photographs of traffic accidents and victims taken during the past two years on the Omaha-Valley road. A discussion of traffic accidents and their causes will follow.

Speakers Thursday will include State Highway Engineer L. N. Rens, Inspector Paul Shively of the Lincoln Police Department, and Capt. O. H. Witt of the Nebraska Safety Patrol.

Dr. Milton Beckmann, assistant professor of secondary education, is supervising the short course.

Hilton Buys Statler Hotels In Giant Transaction

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—The Hilton Hotels have bought the Statler Hotels—a giant transaction in which an innkeeper's son acquires a chain founded by an ex-bellhop.

The Hilton Hotels Corp. described the multimillion-dollar deal as the "largest transaction in the history of the hotel industry." And in the process Conrad Hilton, colorful son of a New Mexico innkeeper, will be nearly doubling the capacity of his already extensive chain.

Eight Properties
Hilton announced his company has signed a contract to acquire controlling interest in Hotels Statler Co., Inc. from the Statler Foundation and various trusts created by the founder, Ellsworth M. Statler. Hilton will acquire eight Statler properties now in operation to increase to 26 the number of hotels owned, leased or operated by Hilton Hotels Corp. The deal will involve in the neighborhood of 76 million dollars.

Ellsworth Statler, who died in 1928, started his career as a bellboy in Wheeling, W. Va., and built his first Hotel Statler in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1905.

Conrad Hilton, 66, a multimillionaire and a former husband of Zsa Zsa Gabor, got his first taste of hotel work in his teens in San Antonio, Tex. His father rented five rooms of their large adobe house to traveling salesmen. It was Conrad's job to meet late night trains and escort guests to the "hotel" where the rate was $1 a day including meals.

$50 Per Share
To carry out the Statler deal, Hilton has agreed to purchase 753,000 shares of common stock at a cost of $50 per share, largely from the Statler Foundations and various Statler trusts.

Hilton said a similar offer will be made to all other shareholders soon to purchase their stock at $50 per share. The announcement said the purchase of all Statler-held stock and other purchase price to 76 million.

The Hilton organization will acquire Statler properties in Boston, New York, Buffalo, Washington, Cleveland, St. Louis, Los Angeles and Detroit.

By taking over the Statlers, Hilton will become the largest hotel operator in the nation. The new purchase will bring his total number of hotel rooms to about 30,000 from the current 17,500.

Title Bout Contract Official

Rock, Ez Trade Compliments At Signing

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Marciano and Ezzard Charles signed the official contracts Tuesday for their Sept. 15 rematch at Yankee Stadium, giving Rocky a chance to explain how he expected to "do better next time" and Ezzard to say how he would have won last time "if I hadn't had a little accident."

Chairman Bob Christenberry of the New York State Athletic Commission beamed good will on the two boxers while promoter Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club reported advance interest slightly better than when the first match was signed. Marciano, bronzed from a six-week vacation at Cape Cod, Mass., and Grossinger, N.Y., will get 40 per cent of "everything" and Charles 20 per cent. It is expected the bout will be carried on theater television but not to home sets although there has been no positive announcement from the IBC.

Since the first fight, June 17, Charles has passed his 33rd birthday. Marciano will be 30 on Sept. 1, two weeks before his fourth defense. About 40 cameramen from newspapers, television and newsreel outfits jammed the commission office for the ceremony.

With the cameras grinding away, Christenberry told how glad he was to preside over the signing for the bout that is a "return match by popular demand."

Charles said he was glad to get another chance at Marciano "one of the toughest men I've boxed."

"I believe I can beat him," said the ex-champ who will be getting an unprecedented third chance to win back the title. "I would have beaten him last time if I hadn't had a little accident (getting hit on the Adam's Apple) and if I hadn't made a couple of mistakes that I won't make again. In a few weeks I'll be sharp and ready for him."

These Guys Have Their Cake And Eat It, Too

Cutting a cake in celebration of the 200th televised fight to be sponsored by the Pabst company are (from left) heavyweight challenger Ezzard

Charles; Harold Johnson, light heavyweight champ Archie Moore; and Joe Louis. Johnson meets Moore in the celebrated fight, a 15-rounder at Madison Square Garden. Charles has also signed for a title bout. He will face Rocky Marciano for the heavyweight championship. (United Press Telephoto.)

Kansas City Move Seen For A's For $4 Million

By BILL LOFTUS
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Chicago realtor Arnold Johnson said Tuesday he has made a "very fair and full offer" to buy the Philadelphia Athletics from the Mack family and would move the American League team to Kansas City next season.

A source closely connected with the A's said that the offer had been made to the Mack family and to the board of directors. The reported sale price for the franchise was four million dollars.

Roy Mack, one of two brothers now actively connected with the operation of the A's, refused to confirm or deny the report of a bid by Johnson. Roy told the Associated Press:

'Doing Utmost'
"The only thing I will say right now is that I am doing my utmost to keep the ball club in Philadelphia."

Several hours earlier, commenting on a news report that Johnson was seeking to buy the ball club, Roy had said:

"The report out of Chicago is positively not true. I have every intention and desire to keep the club in Philadelphia."

From the source connected with the A's, who declined direct attribution, it was learned that this is the situation now:

The club's board of directors is scheduled to meet Aug. 11. At that time, Roy Mack is scheduled to present a proposition to the directors concerning purchase of the club stock now owned by his brother Earle and their father, Connie Mack Sr., president of the club.

New Organization
It is understood that Roy Mack is dickering with several Philadelphia backers to raise the money to purchase the stock and thus take over the ball club. This would leave Roy as the head of a new syndicate controlling the club. It has been indicated that he would effect a sweeping reorganization of the club's operational system. Roy now is vice president and general manager.

However, if the board feels that Roy's offer is unsatisfactory they will have several alternatives. Included, the source said, are:

1. An extension of time in which Roy could try to raise the money to purchase the stock. Earle has given Roy an option to purchase his stock.

2. Consideration—and maybe acceptance—of the Johnson offer.

3. Consideration of "more generalized offers" from other groups interested in purchasing the club. Included, the source said, are representatives of Minneapolis-St. Paul, Houston, Los Angeles and San Francisco. However, these latter groups have not pinpointed the exact amount of cash which they would pay. In the case of Minneapolis, the source said, one group has told the A's it is interested in building a major league stadium and operating it, but is not interested in the actual operation of the team.

Johnson, talking with a reporter in New York, did not disclose any figure but said he had made a "very fair and full offer" for the A's.

Bears Beat Cards 4-2 In Series Opener

OMAHA (AP)—Steady pitching by Chuck Churn in all but one inning gave the Denver Bears first blood in their series with the Omaha Cardinals Tuesday night.

The Grizzlies extended their lead by winning 4-2 in the first game of a scheduled double-header. The second game was postponed by rain.

The stands had about 2,000 fans.

Churn's only moment of weakness came in the sixth inning. A combination of two errors, a single and two walks gave Omaha its second run.

Ex-Lightweight King To Put Comeback On Line

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP)—Jimmy Carter, twice dethroned as light-weight king, and fancy Glen Flanagan, unbeaten in 11 straight bouts, tangle in a nationally-televised 10-rounder at the Chicago Stadium tonight (8 p.m., CST).

Carter's scrap with the smaller of the flailing Flanagan brothers of St. Paul imperils his Sept. 22 rematch with the man who last wrestled the 135-pound crown from him, Paddy DeMarco.

Glen Flanagan, whose brother Del is a leading welter contender, will be at the heaviest of his career, about 136 pounds, as he tries to gain top lightweight recognition.

67th victory against 15 defeats and 8 draws.

Flanagan has a 66-14-11 record and like Carter has scored 26 knockouts. At 27, Glen is two years older than his brother Del. Both Flanagan fight what the trade calls a cute style, dancing away, then bobbing in close with flailing punches when an opponent is off balance.

"I think I'll catch him," said Carter, the pug-nosed boxer-puncher from New York. "I caught his brother, Del, for a seventh-round kayo in 1951. That style of the Flanagan keeps them away just so long."

Storz Gains Finals

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Omaha Storz advanced into the finals of the American Legion Class A baseball state tourney Tuesday night by beating Grand Island, 10-5.

The Omaha club tangles with defending state champion Hastings in the title game or games. Hastings has a 2-0 tourney record and the Omaha team is 2-1 in the tourney.

The tourney is a double elimination affair.

LAERING DOWN ON THE NEWS By Arthur 'Bugs' Boer

Whether you gaze high or low on the bifocals like is now a statesman. He put over his farm bill on the fly-leaf of mail order catalogues.

In 1952 Ike knocked over four southern states and picked up legislative corn in North Carolina and Virginia. In Ike's good neighbor policy the other guy doesn't necessarily have to live next door.

We agree with Ike's flexible dollar policy with everything loose except the change. The Senate endorsed his tax-reform program even though the Democrats played it down like a solo on an oboe.

Ike wants to make taxes easier. But doesn't say whether he means to pay or collect.

He figures the agenda-in-becoming will elect a nodding congress come what November. Including the star-lettered Tuesday in 1956 when the moving finger plays touch-tag with the man of destiny.

Prices for farm products are adjustable. So is a fat man's belt but always for an extra notch.

37 Cheat Death As Airliner Crashes Into Field

12 Injured, Pilot Seriously

PRESTON, Conn. (AP)—Thirty-seven passengers and crewmen, among them two babies, cheated death Tuesday in a terrifying crash of a big transatlantic Constellation battling rain and a low ceiling.

The Air France four-engine plane, bound for Mexico City from Paris via New York, crashed on an isolated farm. It then burst into flames and burned furiously for two hours.

Twelve were listed as hurt, but half of them only superficially. Among the most seriously injured was the pilot, Capt. Jean Caboché of Paris. There was fear he would lose his left leg.

It seemed miraculous that no one was killed.

Caboché had guided the big plane to New York's Idlewild Airport, its immediate destination. Turned back by the weather, he was groping for a landing place when the plane came down in this small eastern Connecticut town between Norwich and New London, about 130 miles from New York.

Three Civil Aeronautics Authority investigators, including Joseph Fluet, head of the Safety Bureau, hurried to the scene in an effort to determine the cause of the accident.

Rose Again

The plane, skidding along on its belly, gouged a track across a field for about half a mile before it rose again into the air.

It then sheered off the top of a row of trees "as if some one had clipped them with a giant scythe," a witness said, smashed into the ground again and skidded through the yard of the home of Valentine Sebastian.

By a bare 50 feet, a wing tip missed the porch where one of Sebastian's small twin sons was playing.

As it hurtled on, the plane slammed through a small out-building containing an automobile, which was demolished.

No sooner had the plane finally come to a halt than flames appeared on one of the wings. Dazed and bewildered, passengers scrambled to the field before the fire reached them.

The seriously injured, including Capt. Caboché with a severe compound fracture of the left leg and a dislocated hip, were carried to safety.

A 25-year-old Guatemalan City physician, Dr. Horatio Polanco, suffered a broken neck. He was paralyzed from the waist down.

The plane carried a crew of 8 and 29 passengers, including 3 children, 4 weeks, 2 years and 9 years old.

One slightly injured survivor, Aaron Rosenstein, 55, of New York said the passengers were screaming before the crash, but all agreed there was no panic.

Those in the rear of the plane were the fortunate ones, said Denyse Hebert, 26, of Longueuil, Que., making her first flight.

She said she escaped injury because "I was in the back. The people up front were hurt, but the people in back were all right."

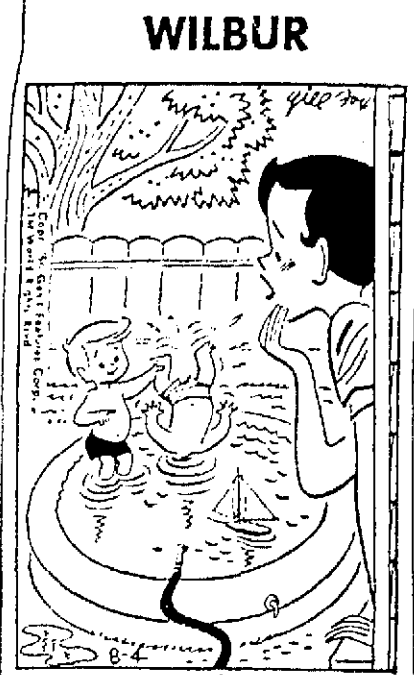

It all happened so quickly that Miss Hebert didn't realize the danger.

"We were circling around over New York for an hour and a half, trying to land," she said. "They told us to fasten our safety belts; and the first thing we knew, we landed."

The plane left Paris Monday night and stopped at Shannon, Ireland.

Witnesses said the fire left the plane a "scrambled mess."

1 OUT OF 3 DOES!

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often tell-tale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infect one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . small, easy-to-take tablets . . . special sizes for children and adults. Perfected by Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for 100 years.

Air Line Steward Is Shot To Death

MIAMI, Fla. (INS) — A 27-year-old Eastern Air Lines steward was found shot to death Tuesday in a "lovers' lane" in Miami.

The body of W. T. Simpson, shot once through the right side, was discovered 500 feet from his blood-spattered, cream-colored convertible.

A .22 caliber shell from a target pistol was found on the floor of the front seat and police indicated that the young steward may have been shot while he was in the car and then crawled out. In the back of the car, two pairs of spear-fishing goggles and a large bath towel were found.
